Burchard de Volder and the Age of the Scientific Revolution Andrea Strazzoni, 2019-11-18 This monograph details the entire scientific thought of an influential natural philosopher whose contributions unfortunately have become obscured by the pages of history Readers will discover an important thinker Burchard de Volder He was instrumental in founding the first experimental cabinet at a European University in 1675 The author goes beyond the familiar image of De Volder as a forerunner of Newtonianism in Continental Europe He consults neglected materials including handwritten sources and takes into account new historiographical categories His investigation maps the thought of an author who did not sit with an univocal philosophical school but critically dealt with all the major philosophers and scientists of his age from Descartes to Newton via Spinoza Boyle Huygens Bernoulli and Leibniz It explores the way De Volder's unsystematic thought used rejected and re shaped their theories and approaches In addition the title includes transcriptions of De Volder's teaching materials disputations dictations and notes Insightful analysis combined with a trove of primary source material will help readers gain a new perspective on a thinker so far mostly ignored by scholars They will find a thoughtful figure who engaged with early modern science and developed a place that fostered experimental philosophy The Edinburgh Review, Or
