Migration, culture and transnational identities Edward O. Ako, Sarah Anyang Agbor, 2013-07-01 A common feature of all human histories is migration The migration of individuals implies the migration of cultures Cultural migration produces transitional and transnational identities This transnationness itself is not a state but rather a stage in a seemingly interminable process of becoming Reframing Treaties in the Late Medieval and Early Modern West , 2025-08-02 The history of peacemaking has traditionally been reduced to isolated case studies and seen as the prelude to the presumed universal and modern international order Countering this one dimensional and Eurocentric narrative this multi authored volume reconceptualizes peace treaties as a range of successful and failed agreements settlements truces leagues and other forms of conflict resolution thus recovering their multilayered history throughout the medieval and early modern period Rather than a series of great treaties peacemaking is reframed as a flexible phenomenon a political grammar whose complexity is reflected in its variety of forms and sources Drawing on both diplomatic history and international relations studies this volume traces the central role that peacemaking has played in the political history of the Western World

Responsibility Ghassan Hage, Robyn Eckersley, 2012-08-01 The concept of responsibility permeates social life While it has many meanings they often centre around questions of practical and moral accountability culpability and liability One can learn a great deal about a social formation by looking at the way the meanings of responsibility are deployed within it the way they vary from one social space to another and the way they are often at the centre of a political struggle over how we define and apportion blame The essays in this book do more than examine such processes Each in its own way also invites the reader to push existing assumptions about what individual political ecological and corporate responsibility entails
