

Chapter 1 Guided Reading Assignment

1. What are science, science theory, and why is it important in biology?
 Research (science) is a method for understanding the natural world. It is important in biology because understanding the natural world is very useful, and understanding how things that are not directly measured (theoretical).
2. What does an organism's structure mean, and what is the difference between its anatomy and physiology? Describe the difference between anatomy and physiology.
 Anatomy is the study of the structure of an organism, and physiology is the study of the function of an organism. Anatomy is the study of the structure of an organism, and physiology is the study of the function of an organism.
3. Describe the process and purpose of cell specialization.
 Cell specialization is the process by which a cell becomes specialized for a specific function. This is done by the cell's DNA, which contains the instructions for the cell's function. The cell's DNA is transcribed into RNA, which is then translated into protein. The protein then determines the cell's function.
4. Label the components of a cell: nucleus, cell membrane, and cytoplasm.

5. What is a surface area to volume ratio, and why is it important in biology? Is it applied to the size of a cell?

6. For each of the structures below, label the structure and the function of the structure or part of the structure. The important concept is to make sure the specific structure is labeled for the specific function for the organism(s).
