An Archaeology Of Land Ownership Routledge Studies In Archaeology:

An Archaeology of Land Ownership Maria Relaki, Despina Catapoti, 2013-10-23 Within archaeological studies land tenure has been mainly studied from the viewpoint of ownership. A host of studies has argued about land ownership on the basis of the simple co-existence of artefacts on the landscape; other studies have tended to extrapolate land ownership from more indirect means. Particularly noteworthy is the tendency to portray land ownership as the driving force behind the emergence of social complexity, a primordial ingredient in the processes that led to the political and economic expansion of prehistoric societies. The association between people and land in all of these interpretive schemata is however less easy to detect analytically. Although various rubrics have been employed to identify such a connection, most notable among them the concepts of cultures, regions or even households, they take the links between land and people as a given and not as something that needs to be conceptually defined and empirically substantiated. An Archaeology of Land Ownership demonstrates that the relationship between people and land in the past is first and foremost an analytical issue and one that calls for clarification not only at the level of definition but also methodological applicability. Bringing together an international roster of specialists, the essays in this volume call attention to the processes by which links to land are established, the various forms that such links take and how they can change through time as well as their importance in helping to forge or dilute an understanding of community at various circumstances.

OIKOS Maria Relaki, Jan Driessen, 2020-07-28 This collection of papers explores whether the Lévi-Straussian notion of the House is a valid concept in aiding the comprehension of the social structure of Bronze Age Aegean societies The volume succeeds in stressing the advances made in the study of social structure of the Aegean on the basis of material remains

From Prehistoric Villages to Cities Jennifer Birch, 2014-04-11 Archaeologists have focused a great deal of attention on explaining the evolution of village societies and the transition to a Neolithic way of life Considerable interest has also concentrated on urbanism and the rise of the earliest cities Between these two landmarks in human cultural development lies a critical stage in social and political evolution Throughout world at various points in time people living in small dispersed village communities have come together into larger and more complex social formations These community aggregates were essentially middle range situated between the earliest villages and emergent chiefdoms and states This volume explores the social processes involved in the creation and maintenance of aggregated communities and how they brought about revolutionary transformations that affected virtually every aspect of a society and its culture While there have been a number of studies that address coalescence from a regional perspective less is understood about how aggregated communities functioned internally The key premise explored in this volume is that large scale long term cultural transformations were ultimately enacted in the context of daily practices interactions and what might be otherwise considered the mundane aspects of everyday life How did these processes play out on the ground in diverse and historically contingent settings What are the strategies and mechanisms that people adopt in order to facilitate living in larger social formations What changes in social relations occur when people come together This volume employs a broadly cross cultural approach to interrogating these questions employing case studies which span four continents and more than 10 000 years of human history Country in the City: Agricultural Functions of Protohistoric Urban Settlements (Aegean and Western Mediterranean) Dominique Garcia, Raphael Orgeolet, Maia Pomadere, Julian Zurbach, 2019-07-31 This volume assembles contributions on the place of agricultural production in the context of the urbanization of Late Bronze and Early Iron Age Mediterranean concentrating on the second millennium Aegean and the protohistoric north western Mediterranean The Cambridge Prehistory of the Bronze and Iron Age Mediterranean A. Bernard Knapp, Peter van Dommelen, 2015-01-12 The Cambridge Prehistory of the Bronze and Iron Age Mediterranean offers new insights into the material and social practices of many different Mediterranean peoples during the Bronze and Iron Ages presenting in particular those features that both connect and distinguish them Contributors discuss in depth a range of topics that motivate and structure Mediterranean archaeology today including insularity and connectivity mobility migration and colonization hybridization and cultural encounters materiality memory and identity community and household life and death and ritual and ideology The volume's broad coverage of different approaches and contemporary archaeological practices will help practitioners of Mediterranean archaeology to move the subject forward in new and dynamic ways Together the essays in this volume shed new light on the people ideas and materials that make up the world of Mediterranean archaeology today beyond the borders that separate Europe Africa and the Middle East

Old Lands Christopher Witmore, 2020-04-13 Old Lands takes readers on an epic journey through the legion spaces and times of the Eastern Peloponnese trailing in the footsteps of a Roman periegete an Ottoman traveler antiquarians and anonymous agrarians Following waters in search of rest through the lens of Lucretian poetics Christopher Witmore reconstitutes an untimely mode of ambulatory writing chorography mindful of the challenges we all face in these precarious times Turning on pressing concerns that arise out of object oriented encounters Old Lands ponders the disappearance of an agrarian world rooted in the Neolithic the transition to urban styles of living and changes in communication movement and metabolism while opening fresh perspectives on long term inhabitation changing mobilities and appropriation through pollution Carefully composed with those objects encountered along its varied paths this book offers an original and wondrous account of a region in twenty seven segments and fulfills a longstanding ambition within archaeology to generate a polychronic narrative that stands as a complement and alternative to diachronic history Old Lands will be of interest to historians archaeologists anthropologists and scholars of the Eastern Peloponnese Those interested in the long term changes in society technology and culture in this region will find this book captivating

Archaeology's Visual Culture Roger Balm, 2015-12-14 Archaeology's Visual Culture explores archaeology through the lens of visual culture theory The insistent visuality of archaeology is a key stimulus for the imaginative and creative interpretation of our encounters with the past Balm investigates the nature of this projection of the visual revealing an embedded subjectivity in the imagery of archaeology and acknowledging the multiplicity of meanings that cohere around artifacts archaeological sites and museum displays Using a wide range of case studies the book highlights how archaeologists can view objects and the consequences that ensue from these ways of seeing Throughout the book Balm considers the potential for documentary images and visual material held in archives to perform cultural work within and between groups of specialists With primary sources ranging from the mid nineteenth to the early twenty first century this volume also maps the intellectual and social connections between archaeologists and their peers Geographical settings include Britain Cyprus Mesoamerica the Middle East and the United States and the sites of visual encounter are no less diverse ranging from excavation reports in salvage archaeology to instrumentally derived data sets and remote sensing imagery By forensically examining selected visual records from published accounts and archival sources enduring tropes of representation become apparent that transcend issues of style and reflect fundamental visual sensibilities within the discipline of archaeology

The History of Environmental Resource Management in Europe Matteo Di Tullio, Anna Maria Stagno, Martino Lorenzo Fagnani, 2025-11-28 Bringing together a broad range of case studies from across Europe this book explores practices implemented to promote the sustainable use of environmental resources from the 16th century until the turn of the 21st century How and with what results environmental resources were managed in the past is one of the main topics of debate in rural and environmental history and archaeology

This book explores the dialogue between these fields drawing upon new studies and comparisons between grammars concepts and research practices from both fields to promote an interdisciplinary approach to the study of the environment The book provides a comprehensive overview and comparison of the different practices of environmental resources management in Europe from the early modern period to contemporaneity shedding light on a range of sustainability issues including land management water supply farming systems and forestry The interdisciplinary contributions in this volume provide original insight based on an analysis of written and material sources examining a range of different regions including northern Italy Slovenia northern Spain southern Spain south western France and northern Romania This book will be of interest to students and scholars of history and archaeology as well as to those in research fields related to anthropology sociology environmental and agricultural sciences and economics
