An Introduction To Global Health Ethics:

An Introduction to Global Health Ethics Andrew Pinto, Ross Upshur, 2013-03-05 The field of global health is expanding rapidly. An increasing number of trainees are studying and working with marginalized populations often within low and middle income countries. Such endeavours are beset by ethical dilemmas, mitigating power differentials, addressing cultural differences in how health and illness are viewed, and obtaining individual and community consent in research. This introductory textbook supports students to understand and work through key areas of concern, assisting them in moving towards a more critical view of global health practice. Divided into two sections covering the theory and practice of global health ethics, the text begins by looking at definitions of global health and the field's historical context. It draws on anti-colonial perspectives, concepts, developing social justice and solidarity as key principles to guide students. The second part focuses on ethical challenges students may face in clinical experiences or research. Topics such as working with indigenous communities, the politics of global health governance, and the ethical challenges of advocacy are explored using a case study approach. An Introduction to Global Health Ethics includes recommended resources and further readings and is ideal for students from a range of disciplines including public health, medicine, nursing, law, and development studies who are undertaking undergraduate and graduate courses in ethics or placements overseas.

An Introduction to Global Health and Global Health Ethics Mary A. Palilonis, 2015 This is a practicum thesis to develop global health curriculum for students. The thesis includes seven articles that provide an introduction to global health and global health ethics. Topics for the articles were developed through research discussions with current students and the author's personal experiences in global health. The articles are: 1. Ebola 2014-15 2. An Introduction to Global Health and Global Health Ethics 3. Global Health: The Current State of Affairs 4. A Brief History of Global Health 5. Health Systems and Treating Tuberculosis 6. HIV/AIDS and Research in Developing Countries 7. Global Surgery and Global Health Metrics and 8. Mental Health and the Cultural Context of Global Health. Each article includes a specific topic in global health, a general concept in healthcare, and an issue in global health ethics, as well as questions for consideration. Articles are designed as a tool to help students become informed participants in global health.

Introduction to Global Health Kathryn H. Jacobsen, 2014 Radiology in Global Health Daniel J. Mollura, Melissa P. Culp, Matthew P. Lungren, 2018-12-31 Exploring the question as to why more than half the world continues to have little or no access to medical imaging and radiology, this important second edition, fully revised and expanded, offers not only answers but practical solutions, providing new tools, ideas, and strategies for bringing vital radiology to low resource areas. Based on RAD AID's ten years of work (2008-2018) serving indigent communities around the world, the book's interdisciplinary approach offers the synthesis of business management, government policy formulation, clinical methods, and engineering in order to integrate economic development, technology innovation, clinical model planning, educational strategies, and public health measures. The gold standard title in the field. Radiology in Global Health 2nd Edition is intended for a broad audience including physicians especially radiologists and radiology residents radiology technologists radiology nurses sonographers hardware software engineers policy makers business leaders researchers and public health specialists at all levels who use or implement health care services for underserved populations In addition as health care providers use radiology in the process of clinical decision making this title is also designed for clinical physicians nurses nurse practitioners physician assistants and paramedical personnel Administrators and public health personnel will also be interested as the planning of radiology services for health care systems at both the facility level and at the population level requires a clear understanding of the technological challenges and management opportunities
