Between Church And State Religion And Public Education In A Multicultural America:

Between Church and State James W. Fraser, 2016-09-15 Looking at the difficult question of how private issues of faith can be reconciled with the very public nature of schooling Fraser's classic book paints a complex picture of how a multicultural society struggles to take the deep commitments of people of faith into account including people of many different faiths and no faith In this fully updated second edition Fraser tackles the culture wars adding fresh material on current battles over public funding for private religious schools He also addresses the development of the long simmering evolution creationism debate and explores the tensions surrounding a discussion of religion and the accommodation of an increasingly religiously diverse American student body Between Church and State includes new scholarship on the role of Roger Williams and William Penn in developing early American conceptions of religious liberty

Religious Tolerance, Education and the Curriculum Elizabeth Burns Coleman, Kevin White, 2011-10-30 The creation of a secular education system was one of the great social experiments designed to break down religious intolerance within society One element of this design was administrative involving the creation of non denominational schools and another element involved a centralised curriculum In this collection of essays political philosophers lawyers sociologists theologians and educators explore the role of state schools in promoting tolerance within 21st century multicultural religiously pluralistic societies How may different models of liberalism in the secular state have different outcomes in relation to religious tolerance in the education system Does a state education system have a role in teaching values such as tolerance and if so how is this best achieved How are epistemology and truth connected with tolerance How does the ideal of a value free secular education mask the values that the secular state teaches The essays are written from both theoretical and practical perspectives and engage with each other directly to address one of the significant issues of our day This is the fourth volume arising from a series of conferences on the theme of Negotiating the Sacred Previous volumes have included Blasphemy and Sacrilege in a Multicultural Society Blasphemy and Sacrilege in the Arts and Medicine Religion and the Body work which gathers previously uncollected essays and a series of seminars delivered at Bennington in 1971 Greenberg provides his most expansive statement of his views on taste and quality in art arguing for an esthetic that flies in the face of current art world fashions Greenberg insists despite the attempts from Marcel Duchamp onwards to escape the jurisdiction of taste by producing an art so disjunctive that it cannot be judged that taste is inexorable He argues that standards of quality in art the artist's responsibility to seek out the hardest demands of a medium and the critic's responsibility to discriminate are essential conditions for great art The obsession with innovation the epidemic of newness leads in Greenberg's view to the boringness of so much avant garde art He discusses the interplay of expectation and surprise in aesthetic experience and the exalted consciousness produced by great art Homemade Esthetics allows us particularly in the transcribed seminar sessions never before published to watch the critic's mind at work defending and at times reconsidering his theories His views often controversial are the record of a lifetime of looking at and thinking about art as intensely as anyone ever has
