Jung, 2024-05-15 Based on multi sited ethnographic fieldwork at Fairfax County Virginia and Daechi dong Seoul Korea Korean Kirogi Families explores the dynamics of emplaced transnational families through analyses of the categories of social capital sense of place sense of belonging and mothering among so called Korean kirogi families A Korean kirogi wild goose family is a distinct kind of transnational migrant family that splits their household to educate the children in an English speaking country temporarily Using mixed research methods including ethnographic fieldwork in depth interviews and textual analyses of media representations and historical documents this book examines Kirogi families in a historical and transnational context. Much of the research focuses on mothers and children who live in McLean and Centreville of Fairfax School District located in Virginia just a few miles from Washington DC. Young A Jung argues that these educational transnational families construct distinct types of sense of belonging including structural belonging, relational belonging, school district belonging, and narrative belonging. In the global migration era when transnational migration continuously reshapes our communities, Korean Kirogi Families reveals how recent education migrants are changing the suburban landscape of America.

Identity, Diaspora and Return in American Literature Maria Antònia Oliver-Rotger, 2014-09-19. This volume combines literary analysis and theoretical approaches to mobility, diasporic identities, and the construction of space to explore the different ways in which the notion of return shapes contemporary ethnic writing such as fiction, ethnography, memoir, and film. Through a wide variety of ethnic experiences ranging from the Transatlantic Asian American, Latino, and Caribbean alongside their corresponding forms of displacement, political exile, war trauma, and economic migration, the essays in this collection connect the intimate experience of the returning subject to multiple locations, historical experiences, inter-subjective relations, and cultural interactions. They challenge the idea of the narrative of return as a journey back to the untouched roots and home that the ethnic subject left behind. Their diacritical approach combines on the one hand a sensitivity to the context and structural elements of modern diaspora and on the other an analysis of the individual psychological processes inherent to the experience of displacement and return such as nostalgia, memory, and belonging. In the narratives of return analyzed in this volume, space and identity are never static or easily definable; rather, they are in process and subject to change as they are always entangled in the historical and inter-subjective relations ensuing from displacement and mobility. This book will interest students and scholars who wish to further explore the role of American literature within current debates on globalization, migration, and ethnicity.

The Sanctuary City Domenic Vitiello, 2022-08-15. In The Sanctuary City, Domenic Vitiello argues that sanctuary means much more than the limited protections offered by city governments or churches sheltering immigrants from deportation. It is a wider set of protections and humanitarian support for vulnerable newcomers. Sanctuary cities are the places where immigrants and their allies create safe spaces to rebuild lives and communities, often through the work of social movements and community organizations or civil society. Philadelphia has been an important center of sanctuary and reflects the growing diversity of American cities in recent decades. One result of this diversity is that sanctuary means different things for different immigrant, refugee, and receiving communities. Vitiello explores the migration, settlement, and local and transnational civil society of Central Americans, Southeast Asians, Liberians, Arabs, Mexicans, and their allies in the region across the late twentieth and early twenty-first centuries. Together, their experiences illuminate the diversity of immigrants and refugees in the United States and what is at stake for different people and for all of us in our immigration debates.
