Dickson McCunn - The Complete Adventure Series in One Volume John Buchan, 2024-01-11

In The Complete Adventure Series in One Volume John Buchan presents an exhilarating compilation of his renowned adventures starring the charismatic protagonist Dickson McCunn. Set primarily against the vivid Scottish landscape, this volume showcases Buchan's deft literary style, seamlessly blending rich imagery with fast-paced narrative and elements of suspense. The stories encapsulate themes of honor, bravery, and the rustic charm of Scottish identity, while also highlighting Buchan's engagement with the socio-political undercurrents of his time, particularly in the wake of World War I. John Buchan (1875-1940) was a multifaceted figure: an accomplished author, politician, and soldier whose experiences shaped his literary output. Notably, his time as a war correspondent and as Governor General of Canada undoubtedly enriched his understanding of human courage and complexity. Buchan's background in history and literature, along with his interest in outdoor pursuits, infused his writing with authenticity and a keen sense of adventure, making him a distinctive voice in early 20th-century literature. This collection is highly recommended for readers seeking a blend of thrilling escapism and profound character exploration. Buchan's mastery in storytelling invites readers to not only immerse themselves in action-packed sequences but also reflect on the deeper themes of resilience and moral integrity that resonate throughout the narrative.

Love and Eugenics in the Late Nineteenth Century Angelique Richardson, 2003

The idea of eugenics, human selective breeding, originated in Victorian Britain in response to the urban poor. Darwin's evolutionary theory had laid the foundations for eugenics, replacing paradise with primordial slime. Man had not fallen from Grace but risen from the swamps. And as architect of his own destiny, he might rise still further. Eugenics was developed by Darwin's cousin, Francis Galton, in the 1860s. Embracing the idea of evolution, eugenicists argued that through the judicious control of human reproduction and the numerical increase of the middle class, Britain's supremacy in the world could be maintained. Born and bred among the competitive Victorian middle class, eugenics was a biologicistic discourse on class. Aiming at racial improvement by altering the balance of class in society, it was, as Galton argued, practical Darwinism. Eugenics found its most sustained expression in fiction and the periodical press and was central to late nineteenth-century ideas on social progress, forming part of the debate between hereditarians and environmentalists that peaked in the closing years of the century. Even Gladstone had his vital statistics measured in Galton's eugenic laboratory. Among the champions of eugenics were social purity feminists and New Women writers such as George Egerton, Ellice Hopkins, and Sarah Grand, who argued that women were naturally biologically moral and that through rational reproduction, middle-class women could regenerate the British imperial race. The New Woman has been the subject of numerous recent critical works. However, the oppressive ideas that coexisted with the emancipatory theories of some New Women ideas that were supremely class-conscious remain largely unexamined, as the focus remains on her more progressive aspects Love and Eugenics in the Late Nineteenth Century recontextualizes New Woman writers demonstrating that they were as concerned with the questions of poverty sickness and health as they were with the changing role of women the issue for which they are currently generally known and celebrated Focusing on fiction and the press and drawing on the papers and published work of Galton and other eugenicists Angelique Richardson reveals the cultural pervasiveness of eugenics and explores for the first time the intimate relations between early feminism and eugenics and making a radical contribution to nineteenth century studies
