Topic: Religion | Words: 1667 | Pages: 6

Reflections on faith as a foundation of worldview and ethical decision making

Moral reflections on the ethical principles that bring meaning to human life are important in understanding principles on bioethics. Reflections based on faith are instrumental in demystifying suffering and the different lifestyles and cultures of people. Principles in bioethics include values such as autonomy, freedom and justice (Meilaender, 2005). Christian background and beliefs inform the debate on bioethics with reflections on the controversial issues especially in the field of medicine. Bioethics is a subject based on the quest for rights with respect to claims in healthcare.

Christian belief provides autonomy to an individual through baptism where a believer receives unique identity from God and a destiny separated from one's parents. Love defines the relationship that exists between Christian believers and God with emphasis on mutual respect and understanding to parents. Utmost reverence is expected on Christians towards God who is the ultimate reason for their living and faith. Individuality is brought about by communicating with God instead of personal effort. Fellowship is therefore important for Christian believers where they were called upon to bear each others' burdens as they are considered to be different parts of the same body of Jesus Christ. Baptism therefore ushers a Christian believer into autonomous and responsible life within the community of fellow believers.

God liberates Christian believers from the bondage of sin through the sacrificial work of Jesus Christ on the cross. This was the greatest act of
