Lizza,2014-02-15 Classic articles and newly commissioned chapters analyze the nature of potentiality in bioethics What is the moral status of humans lacking the potential for consciousness The concept of potentiality often tips the scales in life and death medical decisions Some argue that all human embryos have the potential to develop characteristics such as consciousness intellect and will that we normally associate with personhood Individuals with total brain failure or in a persistent vegetative state are thought to lack the potential for consciousness or any other mental function Or do they In Potentiality John Lizza gathers classic articles alongside newly commissioned chapters from leading thinkers who analyze the nature of potentiality in bioethics a concept central to a number of important debates The contributors illustrate how considerations of potentiality and potential persons complicate the analysis of the moral consideration of persons at the beginning and end of life A number of works explicitly uncover the Aristotelian background of the concept while others explore philosophical issues about persons dispositions and possibility The common assumption that potentiality is intrinsic to whatever has the potentiality is challenged by a relational view of persons an extrinsic account of dispositions and attention to how extrinsic factors affect realistic possibilities Although potentiality has figured prominently in bioethical literature it has not received a great deal of logical semantic and metaphysical analysis in contemporary philosophical literature This collection will bring these thorny philosophical issues to the fore Incorporating cutting edge research on the topic of potentiality this thought provoking collection will interest bioethicists philosophers health care professionals attorneys engaged in medical and health issues and hospital and governmental committees who advise on policy and law concerning issues at the beginning and end of life with nurses to resolve these issues While the content is based on a US context the concerns of nurses internationally are discussed and emphasized Nurses working in acute and chronic care settings face many obstacles to providing good care and are often the first line of defense related to patient safety and meeting the needs of patients and their families Some of the obstacles to optimal patient care are institutional some sociocultural and others the result of inadequate communication Evidence points to the idea that while nurses do have the knowledge and skills to address practice problems of various sorts they may not be confident in their skills of ethical decision making and advocacy actions This is a resource to develop moral agency on behalf of individuals and to address broader barriers to good care raised at the local community or social levels
