

NUTRIENT CYCLES

(How are nutrients recycled through ecosystems?)

Why?

We have learned the importance of recycling our trash. It allows us to use something again for another purpose and prevents the loss of natural resources. But what happens to the waste in nature? Why aren't we up to our necks in poop? Why is there always a supply of water? Why is there oxygen to breathe and carbon dioxide for photosynthesis? Organic compounds in nature are also recycled. This recycling process converts the complex organic compounds to simple, inorganic compounds, which then can be returned to the nutrient cycle and be used in nature again and again.

Model 1: The Carbon Cycle

1. Name two ways that carbon (usually in the form of CO₂) enters the atmosphere.
2. What process uses CO₂ from the atmosphere?
3. What organisms carry out that process?

Atmospheric Deposition and Forest Nutrient Cycling Dale W. Johnson, Steven E. Lindberg, 2013-11-11 Over the past decade there has been considerable interest in the effects of atmospheric deposition on forest ecosystems This volume summarizes the results of the Integrated Forest Study IFS one of the most comprehensive research programs conducted It involved intensive measurements of deposition and nutrient cycling at seventeen diverse forested sites in the United States Canada and Norway The IFS is unique as an applied research project in its complete ecosystem level evaluation of nutrient budgets including significant inputs outputs and internal fluxes It is also noteworthy as a more basic investigation of ecosystem nutrient cycling because of its incorporation of state of the art methods such as quantifying dry and cloud water deposition Most significantly the IFS data was used to test several general hypotheses regarding atmospheric deposition and its effects The data sets also allow for far reaching conclusions because all sites were monitored over the same period using comparable instruments and standardized protocols
