

structures shared by classes of microbes. The components and mechanisms of innate immunity are discussed in detail in Chapter 2; the remainder of this chapter is an introduction to adaptive immunity.

The adaptive immune response is mediated by lymphocytes with highly diverse and variable receptors for foreign substances and the products of these cells, such as antibodies and other proteins. Adaptive immune responses are critical for defense against infectious pathogens that may have evolved to resist innate immunity. The lymphocytes of adaptive immunity express receptors that specifically recognize a wide variety of molecules produced by microbes, as well as noninfectious molecules. Any molecule that is specifically recognized by lymphocytes or antibodies is called an antigen.

Division of Labor: Types of Adaptive Immunity

There are two types of adaptive immunity, called humoral immunity and cell-mediated immunity, mediated by different cells and molecules, that provide defense against microbes in different locations (Fig. 1.4). Extracellular microbes (which survive outside host cells and are readily destroyed when they are ingested by phagocytes) are combated by antibodies. Microbes that have evolved to survive inside host cells, either in phagocytic vesicles or in the cytosol, are eradicated by the actions of T lymphocytes.

Fig. 1.4 Types of adaptive immunity. In humoral immunity, B lymphocytes secrete antibodies that eliminate extracellular microbes. In cell-mediated immunity, some T lymphocytes secrete soluble proteins called cytokines that recruit and activate phagocytes to destroy ingested microbes, and other T lymphocytes kill infected cells. CTLs, Cytotoxic T lymphocytes.
