Decolonisation in Universities Jonathan Jansen, 2019-04-01 In this collection of case studies and stories from the field South African scholars come together to trade stories on how to decolonise the university Shortly after the giant bronze statue of Cecil John Rhodes came down at the University of Cape Town student protestors called for the decolonisation of universities It was a word hardly heard in South Africa's struggle lexicon and many asked What exactly is decolonisation This edited volume brings together the best minds in curriculum theory to address this important question In the process several critical questions are raised Is decolonisation simply a slogan for addressing other pressing concerns on campuses and in society What is the colonial legacy with respect to curriculum and can it be undone How is the project of curriculum decolonisation similar to or different from the quest for postcolonial knowledge indigenous knowledge or a critical theory of knowledge What does decolonisation mean in a digital age where relationships between knowledge and power are shifting The book combines strong conceptual analyses with novel case studies of attempts to do decolonisation in settings as diverse as South Africa Uganda Tanzania and Mauritius Such a comparative perspective enables reasonable judgements to be made about the prospects for institutional take up within the curriculum of century old universities Social Justice and

Education in the 21st Century Willie Pearson Jr., Vijay Reddy, 2021-04-10 The world is not an equal place There are high and low income countries and high and low income households For each group there are differential educational opportunities leading to differential educational outcomes and differential labor market opportunities This pattern often reproduces the privileges and inequalities of groups in a society This book explores this differentiation in education from a social justice lens Comparing the United States and South Africa this book analyzes each country's developmental thinking on education from human capital and human rights approaches in both primary and higher education The enclosed contributions draw from different disciplines including legal studies sociology psychology computer science and public policy Self-Directed Learning in the era of the COVID-19 pandemic Josef de Beer, Neal Petersen, Elsa Mentz, Robert J. Balfour, 2023-03-01 The book is devoted to scholarship in the field of pre-service teacher education with a specific focus on research into the enhancement of self-directed learning and contributes to the discourse on creating a disposition towards self-directed learning during the social and academic integration of first-year students within higher education institutions Two chapters also deal with research on the development of self-directed learning and nuanced understandings of the chosen professions of Law and Health Sciences students The target audience is scholars working in the fields of teacher education self-directed learning engaging pedagogies problem-based learning cooperative learning and gamification Whereas social constructivist learning theory served as an overarching theoretical framework for the virtual excursions the various chapters in the book also draw on other secondary theories such as self determination theory social interdependence theory gender theory and the with fitness model of Kounin 1970

Health Promoting Universities Vicki Squires, Chad London, Matt Dolf, 2025-04-30

Amid global challenges like climate change systemic racism and the COVID 19 pandemic the complexity of higher education's role in addressing human health and well being is evident Health Promoting Universities explores how post secondary education can address interconnected well being challenges through collaborative leadership at organizational provincial state national and international levels Written by health promoting university leaders from Canada the United Kingdom and the United States this collection reflects on research findings and emergent insights in taking a systems and settings approach to promote health and well being The authors advocate for prioritizing authentic collaborative and altruistic leadership to secure the systemic change necessary to sustain and promote the health of the planet and its citizens The book examines systems wide health promotion within post secondary campuses emphasizing higher education's role as an incubator to design and implement community led processes and leadership strategies to enhance well being By engaging in knowledge mobilization practices that include the community and beyond the book invites leaders practitioners and researchers to use these approaches to lead well being efforts beyond the physical boundaries of their campuses Drawing on the collective knowledge of the authors in leading health promotion on campuses and beyond Health Promoting Universities ultimately seeks to answer the question How can higher education improve people's well being create healthy campus communities and ensure a healthy planet

Understanding Experiences of First Generation University Students Amani Bell, Lorri J. Santamaría, 2018-02-22

Over the past few decades universities have opened their doors to students whose parents and grandparents were historically excluded from societal participation and higher education for reasons associated with racial ethnic socio economic and or linguistic diversity Many of these students are first generation or first in their family to attend university While some progress has been made in responding to the needs of these internationally underserved learners many challenges remain This edited book features the unique and diverse experiences of first generation students as they transition into and engage with higher education whilst exploring ways in which universities might better serve these students With reference to culturally responsive and sustaining research methodologies undertaken in Australia Canada New Zealand South Africa the UK and the USA the contributors critically examine how these students demonstrate resilience within university and ways in which success and challenges are articulated Elements that are unique to context and shared across the international higher education milieu are explored The book is replete with diverse student voices and compelling implications for practice and future research The studies featured are centred on underlying theories of identity and intersectionality while valuing student voices and experiences Throughout the emphasis is on using strengths based indigenous and decolonised methodologies Through these culturally sustaining approaches which include critical incident technique participatory learning and action talanoa and narrative inquiry the book explores rich data on first generation student experiences at seven institutions in six countries across four continents Agriculture + Rural Development ,2003
