Altruria is a Utopian novel a critique of unfettered capitalism and its consequences and of the Gilded Age Set during the early 1890s in a fashionable summer resort somewhere on the East Coast of the United States the book is narrated by a Mr Twelvemough a popular author of light fiction who has been selected to function as host to a visitor from the faraway island of Altruria called Mr Homos Homos has come all the way to the United States to experience first hand everyday life in the country which prides itself to represent democracy and equality to see for himself how the principle that all men are created equal is being practiced However due to Altruria's secluded existence very little is known about that state so Twelvemough and his circle of acquaintances are more eager to learn something about Altruria than to explain American life and institutions

William Dean Howells 1837 1920 was an American realist novelist literary critic and playwright nicknamed The Dean of American Letters He was particularly known for his tenure as editor of The Atlantic Monthly as well as for his own prolific writings including the Christmas story Christmas Every Day and the novels The Rise of Silas Lapham and A Traveler from Altruria

A Traveler from Altruria D. W. Howells, 2007-06-01 A Traveler from Altruria (1894): Utopian Novel William Dean Howells, 2019-02-17

A Traveler from Altruria is a Utopian novel by William Dean Howells It was first published in installments in The Cosmopolitan between November 1892 and October 1893 and eventually in book form by Harper Brothers in 1894 The novel is a critique of unfettered capitalism and its consequences and of the Gilded Age

Introduction Set during the early 1890s in a fashionable summer resort somewhere on the East Coast of the United States the book is narrated by a Mr Twelvemough a popular author of light fiction who has been selected to function as host to a visitor from the faraway island of Altruria called Mr Homos Homos has come all the way to the United States to experience first hand everyday life in the country which prides itself to represent democracy and equality to see for himself how the principle that all men are created equal is being practiced However due to Altruria's secluded existence very little is known about that state so Twelvemough and his circle of acquaintances all of whom are staying at the same hotel are more eager to learn something about Altruria than to explain American life and institutions To their dismay it becomes gradually clear to everyone involved in the conversations with Mr Homos who in the course of the novel becomes less and less reluctant to talk about his own country that the United States is greatly lagging behind Altruria in practically every aspect of life be it political economical cultural or moral Thus in the novel the island state of Altruria serves as a foil to America whose citizens compared to Altrurians appear selfish obsessed with money and emotionally imbalanced

Mainly A Traveller from Altruria is a critique of unfettered capitalism and its consequences and of the Gilded Age in particular In A Traveler from Altruria Howells acknowledges the history of Utopian literature by having his group of educated characters refer to eminent representatives of that literary tradition such as Campanella La città del Sole 1602 and Francis Bacon New Atlantis 1623 but also to quite recent authors like Edward Bellamy Looking Backward 1888 and William Morris News from Nowhere 1890 With all those imaginary commonwealths to draw upon from Plato through More Bacon and Campanella down to Bellamy and Morris he has constructed the shakiest effigy ever made of old clothes stuffed with straw says the professor one of Homos s discussion partners to his fellow Americans Depend upon it the man is a humbug He is not an Altrurian at all William Dean Howells March 1 1837 May 11 1920 was an American realist novelist literary critic and playwright nicknamed The Dean of American Letters He was particularly known for his tenure as editor of The Atlantic Monthly as well as for his own prolific writings including the Christmas story Christmas Every Day and the novels The Rise of Silas Lapham and A Traveler from Altruria Early life and family William Dean Howells was born on March 1 1837 in Martinsville Ohio now known as Martins Ferry Ohio to William Cooper Howells and Mary Dean Howells the second of eight children His father was a newspaper editor and printer who moved frequently around Ohio In 1840 the family settled in Hamilton Ohio where his father oversaw a Whig newspaper and followed Swedenborgianism Their nine years there were the longest period that they stayed in one place The family had to live frugally although the young Howells was encouraged by his parents in his literary interests He began at an early age to help his father with typesetting and printing work a job known at the time as a printer s devil In 1852 his father arranged to have one of his poems published in the Ohio State Journal without telling him
