

A Veiled Gazelle

SEEING HOW TO SEE BY IDRIES SHAH

Master of the Option

Three young men, each having heard of the great sanctity and wonders wrought by the Sufi master Koldū, chanced to meet on their way to his dwelling-place. Journeying together, they discussed what they knew of the Path and its difficulties.

"Sincerity towards your teacher is essential," said the first youth, "and I shall concentrate upon that, if I am accepted as a student, to exclude my own base selfishness."

"Sincerity," said the second, "of course means complete obedience, even when provoked to rebel. And I certainly shall abide by that. But obedience also means to avoid hypocrisy – desiring inwardly to disobey – and includes generosity without pride. That I will attempt."

"Sincerity, avoiding base selfishness, obedience, detachment from hypocrisy, generosity," said the third, "these are essentials. But I have heard it said that if the disciple tries to graft these on top of his unaltered self, they merely become mechanical, names, even hiding objectionable characteristics which wait to manifest themselves. Surely the real disciple is he who is not just doing the opposite of what he feels is bad, nor carrying on a charade of "goodness". They say that he is a Seeker of Truth who is master of the option, to do good or to do what has to be done."
