

varied by pressing a string against the fingerboard with the fingers to change the length L of the vibrating portion of the string. Increasing the tension F increases the wave speed v and thus increases the frequency (and the pitch). All string instruments are “tuned” to the correct frequencies by varying the tension; you tighten the string to raise the pitch. Finally, increasing the mass per unit length μ decreases the wave speed and thus the frequency. The lower notes on a steel guitar are produced by thicker strings, and one reason for winding the bass strings of a piano with wire is to obtain the desired low frequency from a relatively short string.

Wind instruments such as saxophones and trombones also have normal modes. As for stringed instruments, the frequencies of these normal modes determine the pitch of the musical tones that these instruments produce. We’ll discuss

EXAMPLE 15.10 Standing waves on a string

A string is stretched between two supports that are 1.20 m apart. The string is set into vibration in its third harmonic, and the frequency of the vibration is 420 Hz. (a) What is the wave speed in the string? (b) What is the tension in the string if the mass per unit length is 0.0150 kg/m?

SOLUTION

IDENTIFY and SET UP: This problem involves standing waves on a string. We are given the length of the string, the frequency of the vibration, and the mass per unit length of the string. We are asked to find the wave speed and the tension in the string. We can use the relationship between the wave speed, the frequency, and the wavelength to find the wave speed. We can use the relationship between the tension, the mass per unit length, and the wave speed to find the tension.

EXECUTE the following plan:

$$\begin{aligned} v &= \lambda f = \left(\frac{2L}{n} \right) f = \left(\frac{2(1.20 \text{ m})}{3} \right) (420 \text{ Hz}) \\ &= 336 \text{ m/s} \end{aligned}$$
