Intellectual Property and the Hollywood Superhero explains superhero blockbusters as allegories of intellectual property relations. In movies based on characters owned by the comics duopoly of DC and Marvel, no narrative recurs more often than a villain's attempt to copy the superhero's unique powers. In this volume, author Ezra Claverie explains this fixation as a symptom of the film's mode of production. Since the 1930s, the dominant American comics publishers have treated the creations of artists and writers as work for hire, such that stories and characters become company property. Thus, publishers avoided sharing the profits both from magazine sales and from licensing characters into other media. For decades, creators have challenged this regime, demanding either shares of profits or outright ownership of their creations. Now that the duopoly rents licenses and adapts superheroes for increasingly expensive franchises and for growing international audiences, any challenge to intellectual property relations threatens a production regime worth billions of dollars. Duopoly movies therefore present any attempt to break the superhero's monopoly on their powers as the scheme of terrorists, mad scientists, or space Nazis, assuaging studio anxieties and revealing the fears of those who benefit most from the real-world ownership of superheroes. Weaving together legal analysis, Marxist political economy, and close readings of movies, Copyright Vigilantes explains the preoccupations of Hollywood's leading genre.

The Vampire in Science Fiction Film and Literature Paul Meehan, 2014-07-07. Vampires have been a popular subject for writers since their inception in 19th-century Gothic literature and later became popular with filmmakers. Now the classical vampire is extinct, and in its place are new vampires who embrace the hi-tech worlds of science fiction. This book is the first to examine the history of vampires in science fiction. The first part considers the role of science and pseudo-science from late Victorian to modern times in the creation of the vampire, as well as the sensation fiction of J. Sheridan Le Fanu, Bram Stoker, Arthur Conan

Doyle and H G Wells The second part focuses on the history of the science fiction vampire in the cinema from the silent era to the present More than sixty films are discussed including films from such acclaimed directors as Roger Corman David Cronenberg Guillermo del Toro and Steven Spielberg among others
