Beirut Seizures Haas H. Mroue, 1993-01-01 Beirut Seizures Haas H. Mroue, 2012-01-04 On April 13 1975 four Phalangists were murdered during the attempted assassination of Pierre Jumayyil In a retaliation effort the Phalangists attacked a bus filled with Palestinian passengers killing twenty seven of the occupants And so began a civil war in Lebanon that would last sixteen years and take more than one hundred thousand lives In his posthumous collection of poetry Haas Mroue offers deeply moving lyrical verse that details his traumatic experiences as the chaos of the war in Lebanon engulfed his childhood as well as the experiences of the some nine hundred thousand who were forced to flee their homes Recalling how he helplessly witnessed rockets flying over rooftops and listened for names of the dead on the radio Haas relies on strong imagery as he shares how he lived through a war with no name and somehow managed to escape Beirut with nothing but his memories Originally written some twenty years after he fled the war the poetry in Beirut Seizures carefully examines difficult subjects and politically charged ideas with grace emotion and a strong voice making it a powerful statement about the impact of war on ordinary people A Photojournalist Kabul to Beirut Haas Hassib Mroue, 2015 I've given my life to let the world know the truth But do they care Do they really want to know Olga is an international photojournalist determined to bring the reality of war to an unaware audience But when tragedy strikes on an assignment in Beirut she is forced to question the true value of her work and the real cost of human life This haunting and powerful screenplay from award winning writer Haas Mroue beautifully weaves the personal and the global to show how war touches us all Published here for the first time and based on his real life experience of growing up during the Lebanese Civil War Haas's screenplay is still just as pertinent now as when it was written The wars still continue even if the names have changed Contemporary Arab-American Literature Carol Fadda-Conrey, 2014 The last couple of decades have witnessed a flourishing of Arab American literature across multiple genres Yet increased interest in this literature is ironically paralleled by a prevalent bias against Arabs and Muslims that portrays their long presence in the US as a recent and unwelcome phenomenon Spanning the 1990s to the present Carol Fadda Conrey takes in the sweep of literary and cultural texts by Arab American writers in order to understand the ways in which their depictions of Arab homelands whether actual or imagined play a crucial role in shaping cultural articulations of US citizenship and belonging By asserting themselves within a US framework while maintaining connections to their homelands Arab Americans contest the blanket representations of themselves as dictated by the US nation state Deploying a multidisciplinary framework at the intersection of Middle Eastern studies US ethnic studies and diaspora studies Fadda Conrey argues for a transnational discourse that overturns the often rigid affiliations embedded in ethnic labels Tracing the shifts in transnational perspectives from the founders of Arab American literature like Gibran Kahlil Gibran and Ameen Rihani to modern writers such as Naomi Shihab Nye Joseph Geha Randa Jarrar and Suheir Hammad Fadda Conrey finds that contemporary Arab American writers depict strong yet complex attachments to the US landscape She explores how the idea of home is negotiated between immigrant parents and subsequent generations alongside analyses of texts that work toward fostering more nuanced understandings of Arab and Muslim identities in the wake of post 9 11 anti Arab sentiments Articulations of Resistance Sirène H. Harb, 2019-11-11 Using a theoretical framework located at the intersection of US ethnic studies transnational studies and postcolonial studies Articulations of Resistance Transformative Practices in Contemporary Arab American Poetry maps an interdisciplinary model of critical inquiry to demonstrate the intimate link and multilayered connections between poetry and resistance In this study of contemporary Arab American poetry Sir ne Harb analyzes how resistance defined as the force challenging the dominant intervenes in ways of rethinking the local and the global vis vis traditional paradigms of time space language and value
