women as actors within the sphere of the religious In ancient Mesopotamia and other ancient civilizations religious beliefs and practices permeated all aspects of society and for this reason it is not possible to completely dissociate religion from politics economy or literature Thus the goal is to shift the perspective by highlighting the different ways in which the agency of women can be traced in the historical and archaeological record This perspectival shift can be seen in studies of elite women who actively contributed to religious gift giving or participated in temple economies or through showing the limits of elite women's agency in relation to diplomatic marriages Additionally several contributions examine the roles of women as religious officials and the language worship or invocation of goddesses This volume does not aim at completeness but seeks to highlight points for further research and new perspectives

Encountering Islam on the First Crusade Nicholas Morton, 2016-07-14 The First Crusade 1095-9 has often been characterised as a head to head confrontation between the forces of Christianity and Islam For many it is the campaign that created a lasting rupture between these two faiths Nevertheless is such a characterisation borne out by the sources Engagingly written and supported by a wealth of evidence Encountering Islam on the First Crusade offers a major reinterpretation of the crusaders attitudes towards the Arabic and Turkic peoples they encountered on their journey to Jerusalem Nicholas Morton considers how they interpreted the new peoples civilizations and landscapes they encountered sights for which their former lives in Western Christendom had provided little preparation Morton offers a varied picture of cross cultural relations depicting the Near East as an arena in which multiple protagonists were pitted against each other Some were fighting for supremacy others for their religion and many simply for survival
