Instructional Models in Computer-Based Learning Environments Sanne Dijkstra, Hein P.M. Krammer, Jeroen J.G. van Merriënboer, 2013-11-11 In the last decade there have been rapid developments in the field of computer based learning environments A whole new generation of computer based learning environments has appeared requiring new approaches to design and development One main feature of current systems is that they distinguish different knowledge bases that are assumed to be necessary to support learning processes Current computer based learning environments often require explicit representations of large bodies of knowledge including knowledge of instruction This book focuses on instructional models as explicit potentially implementable representations of knowledge concerning one or more aspects of instruction The book has three parts relating to different aspects of the knowledge that should be made explicit in instructional models knowledge of instructional planning knowledge of instructional strategies and knowledge of instructional control The book is based on a NATO Advanced Research Workshop held at the University of Twente The Netherlands in July 1991

The Design of Aircraft Landing Gear Robert Kyle Schmidt,2021-02-18 The aircraft landing gear and its associated systems represent a compelling design challenge simultaneously a system a structure and a machine it supports the aircraft on the ground absorbs landing and braking energy permits maneuvering and retracts to minimize aircraft drag Yet as it is not required during flight it also represents dead weight and significant effort must be made to minimize its total mass The Design of Aircraft Landing Gear written by R Kyle Schmidt PE B A Sc Mechanical Engineering M Sc Safety and Aircraft Accident Investigation Chairman of the SAE A 5 Committee on Aircraft Landing Gear is designed to guide the reader through the key principles of landing system design and to provide additional references when available Many problems which must be confronted have already been addressed by others in the past but the information is not known or shared leading to the observation that there are few new problems but many new people The Design of Aircraft Landing Gear is intended to share much of the existing information and provide avenues for further exploration The design of an aircraft and its associated systems including the landing system involves iterative loops as the impact of each modification to a system or component is evaluated against the whole It is rare to find that the lightest possible landing gear represents the best solution for the aircraft the lightest landing gear may require attachment structures which don t exist and which would require significant weight and compromise on the part of the airframe structure design With those requirements and compromises in mind The Design of Aircraft Landing Gear starts with the study of airfield compatibility aircraft stability on the ground the correct choice of tires followed by discussion of brakes wheels and brake control systems Various landing gear architectures are investigated together with the details of shock absorber designs Retraction kinematics and mechanisms are studied as well as possible actuation approaches Detailed information on the various hydraulic and electric services commonly found on aircraft and system elements such as dressings lighting and steering are also reviewed Detail design points the process of analysis and a review of the relevant requirements and regulations round out the book content The Design of Aircraft Landing Gear is a landmark work in the industry and a must read for any engineer interested in updating specific skills and students preparing for an exciting career

Aerodynamic Design of Transport Aircraft Ed Obert,2009 The origin of

Aerodynamic Design of Transport Aircraft stems from the time when the author was appointed part time professor in the Aerospace Faculty of Delft University of Technology At the time his main activities were those of leading the departments of Aerodynamics Performance and Preliminary Design at Fokker Aircraft Company The groundwork for this book started in 1987 as a series of lecture notes consisting mainly of pictorial material with a minimum of English explanatory text After the demise of Fokker in 1996 one feared that interest in aeronautical engineering would strongly diminish As a result of this the course was discontinued and the relationship between the author and the faculty came to an end Two years later the situation was reappraised and the interest in aeronautical engineering remained so the course was reinstated with a former Fokker colleague Ronald Slingerland as lecturer The lecture notes from these courses form the foundation of this publication

Human Error in Aviation R.Key Dismukes, 2017-07-05 Most aviation accidents are attributed to human error pilot error especially Human error also greatly effects productivity and profitability In his overview of this collection of papers the editor points out that these facts are often misinterpreted as evidence of deficiency on the part of operators involved in accidents Human factors research reveals a more accurate and useful perspective The errors made by skilled human operators such as pilots controllers and mechanics are not root causes but symptoms of the way industry operates The papers selected for this volume have strongly influenced modern thinking about why skilled experts make errors and how to make aviation error resilient Aircraft Accident Report , Airplane Design Jan Roskam, 1997
