African American Servitude and Historical Imaginings M. Jordan, 2004-08-20 In African American Servitude and Historical Imaginings Margaret Jordan initiates a new way of looking at the African American presence in American literature. Twentieth-century retrospective fiction is the site for this compelling investigation about how African American servants and slaves have enormous utility as cultural artifacts: objects to be acted upon, agents in place, or agents provocateurs. Jordan argues that even those seemingly innocuous, infrequently visible or silent servants are vehicles through which history, culture, and social values and practices are cultivated and perpetuated, challenged, and destabilized. Jordan demonstrates how African American servants and servitude are strategically deployed and engaged in ways which encourage a rethinking of the past. She examines the ideological underpinnings of retrospective fiction by writers who are clearly social theorists and philosophers. Jordan contends that they do not read or misread history; they imagine history as meditations on social realities and reconstruct the past as a way to confront the present.

In Spirit and in Truth Melva Wilson Costen, 2004-01-01 Costen concludes by offering models and suggestions for helping those who plan worship to listen for the leading of the Holy Spirit and ultimately challenges music and worship leaders to reclaim traditional African American spirituality and its presence in the music experienced in African American worship.
