Emerging Traditions Vicki Briault Manus,2012-07-10 The monograph explores the linguistic impact of the colonial and postcolonial situations in South Africa on language policy on literary production and especially on the stylistics of fiction by indigenous South Africans writing in English A secondary concern is to investigate the present place of English in the multilingual spectrum of South African languages and to see how this worldly English relates to Global English in the South African context The introduction presents a socio linguistic overview of South Africa from pre historic times until the present including language planning policies during and after the colonial era and a cursory review of how the difficulties encountered in implementing the Language Plan provided for by the new South African constitution impinge on the development of black South African English Six chapters track the course of English in South Africa since the arrival of the British in 1795 considered from the point of view of the indigenous African population The study focuses on ways in which indigenous authors indigenize their writing innovating and subverting stylistic conventions including those of African orature in order to bend language and genre towards their own culture and objectives Each chapter corresponds to a briefly outlined historical period that is largely reflected in linguistic and literary developments A small number of significant works for each period are discussed one of which is selected for a case study at the end of each chapter where it is subjected to detailed stylistic analysis and appraised for the degree of indigenization or other linguistic or socio historic influences on style The methodology adopted is a linguistic approach to stylistics focusing on indigenization of English inspired by the work of Chantal Zabus in her book The African Palimpsest Indigenization of Language in the West African Europhone Novel 2007 1991 The conclusion reappraises the original hypothesis that the specific characteristi

Unyoking African University Knowledge ,2023-04-12 The discourse of decolonisation though littered with unresolved contestation in the university as an institution of higher learning has often been blamed on the impact of neoliberal globalisation philosophy The volume focuses on unfinished project of decolonisation with an aim on African knowledge and the historical question of canonicity by keeping the emancipative dialogue alive The authors place great scrutiny on the quality of curriculum offered in universities arguing that a sound relevant curriculum original to the continent can save Africa s citizenry from challenges bedevilling socio economic development This book proposes a disruption and potential end to western hegemonic epistemologies that manifest the neoliberal geopolitical terrain in the form of cultural imperialism epistemicide and linguicide through a decolonial approach to the curriculum in African universities It interrogates and challenges the neo colonial entanglement in regional higher education policy processes coupled with the excessive dependence of regional stakeholders on western external actors for higher education policy and envisages a decolonial alternative future for the regionalisation of higher education in Africa To this end the book brings in a more philosophical and practical hermeneutic of knowledge production and dissemination that unyokes post independence African universities from the bondage of erstwhile colonisers

African Print Cultures Derek Peterson, Steph Newell, Emma Hunter, 2016-09-29 The essays collected in African Print Cultures claim African newspapers as subjects of historical and literary study Newspapers were not only vehicles for anticolonial nationalism They were also incubators of literary experimentation and networks by which new solidarities came into being By focusing on the creative work that African editors and contributors did this volume brings an infrastructure of African public culture into view The first of four thematic sections African Newspaper Networks considers the work that newspaper editors did to relate events within their locality to happenings in far off places This work of correlation and juxtaposition made it possible for distant people to see themselves as fellow travellers Experiments with Genre explores how newspapers nurtured the development of new literary genres such as poetry realist fiction photoplays and travel writing in African languages and in English Newspapers and Their Publics looks at the ways in which African newspapers fostered the creation of new kinds of communities and served as networks for public interaction political and otherwise The final section Afterlives is about the longue dure of history that newspapers helped to structure and how throughout the twentieth century print allowed contributors to view their writing as material meant for posterity
