

JEANETTE

Born 1970, served 1994-1995
Liberian People's Council (LPC)

I was with the LPC. I joined in 1994, when I was thirteen, and was demobilized the following year. My fighting name was "Woman Death Squad."

I did reconnaissance work. I heard the guns, but I never fired one. We would act like civilians or pretend to be deserters. We would infiltrate the enemy group, study their activities, then slip back and give our group the information.

My parents were killed in the war — that's why I fought in the beginning. I stopped because I didn't know what we were fighting for. Brothers against brothers and sisters against sisters — it was just a useless thing.

Now my friend Lovetta and I are selling fish in the market.

Monrovia, Liberia 2, 1996
