A Profession Of Hope Farming On The Edge Of The Grizzly Trail:

A Profession of Hope Jenna Butler, 2015 Winner of the Canadian Authors Association Exporting Alberta Award Gold Medal for the Green Living category in the Living Now Book Awards Finalist for the High Plains Book Award for creative nonfiction This is not the story of a ready made farm complete with generations of history carefully tended tools and sturdy clapboard farmhouse In 2006 Jenna Butler and her partner Thomas purchased 160 acres more or less of rough northern bush They knew they weren't purchasing anything more than hard work and hope but still they headed up every weekend to clear a spot in those woods where they could plant their first crops With the warm wit of Barbara Kingsolver and the stark beauty of Sharon Butala's writings on the prairie Jenna Butler shares her journey with us From beating a hasty retreat from the first overwhelming swarm of mosquitoes to discussing worm poop with local farmers and becoming forever more the crazy hippie teachers the stories of Larch Farm spill out of these pages A Profession of Hope Farming on the edge of the Grizzly Trail is a beguiling read as rich and promising as freshly turned earth

Lookout Trina Moyles, 2022-07-26 A page turning memoir about a young woman's grueling revelatory summers working alone in a remote lookout tower and her eyewitness account of the increasingly unpredictable nature of wildfire in the Canadian north While growing up in Peace River Alberta Trina Moyles heard many stories of Lookout Observers strange eccentric types who spent five month summers alone climbing 100 foot high towers and watching for signs of fire in the surrounding boreal forest How could you isolate yourself for that long she wondered I could never do it she told herself Craving a deeper sense of purpose she left northern Alberta to pursue a decade long career in global humanitarian work After three years in East Africa and newly engaged Trina returned to Peace River with a plan to sponsor her fiancé Akello's immigration to Canada Despite her fear of being alone in the woods she applied for a seasonal lookout position and got the job Thus begins Trina's first summer as one of a handful of lookouts scattered throughout Alberta with only a farm dog Holly labeled a domesticated wolf by her former owners to keep her company While searching for smoke Trina unravels under the pressure of a long distance relationship and a dawning awareness of the environmental crisis that climate change is producing in the boreal Through megafires lightning storms and stunning encounters with wildlife she learns to survive at the fire tower by forging deep connections with nature and with an extraordinary community of people dedicated to wildfire detection and combat In isolation she discovers a kind of self awareness and freedom that only solitude can deliver Lookout is a riveting story of loss transformation and belonging to oneself layered with an eyewitness account of the destructive and regenerative power of wildfire in our northern forests

Magnetic North Jenna Butler, 2018-08-30 Windburned eyes closed this beneath the keening of bergs a deeper thresh of glaciers calving creaking with sun Sound of earth her bones wide russet bowl of hips splaying open From these sere flanks her desiccating body what a sea change is born From the endangered Canadian boreal forest to the environmentally threatened Svalbard archipelago off the coast of Norway Jenna Butler takes us on a sea voyage that connects continents and traces the impacts of climate change on northern lands With a conservationist female gaze she questions explorer narratives and the mythic draw of the polar North As a woman who cannot have children she writes out the internal friction of travelling in Svalbard during the fertile height of the Arctic summer Blending travelogue and poetic meditation on place Jenna Butler draws readers to the beauty and power of threatened landscapes asking why some stories in recorded history are privileged while others speak only from beneath the surface
