American History in Transition Yoshinari Yamaguchi,2020-03-02 In American History in Transition Yoshinari Yamaguchi provides fresh insights into early efforts in American history writing ranging from Jeremy Belknap's Massachusetts Historical Society to Emma Willard's geographic history and Francis Parkman's history of deep time to Henry Adams's thermodynamic history. Although not a well organized set of professional researchers, these historians shared the same concern: the problems of temporalization and secularization in history writing. As the time honored framework of sacred history was gradually outdated, American historians at that time turned to individual facts as possible evidence for a new generalization and tried different scientific theories to give coherency to their writings. History writing was in its transitional phase, shifting from religion to science, deduction to induction, and static to dynamic worldview.

African American Literature in Transition, 1865-1880: Volume 5, 1865-1880 Eric Gardner, 2021-05-13. This volume offers the most nuanced treatment available of Black engagement with print in the transitional years after the Civil War. It locates and studies materials that many literary historians leave out of narratives of American culture. But as important as such recovery work is, African American Literature in Transition 1865-1880 also emphasizes innovative approaches, recognizing that such recovery inherently challenges methods dominant in American literary study. At the book's core is the recognition that many period texts by writers from Frances Ellen Watkins Harper and William Wells Brown to Mattie Jackson and William Steward are not only aesthetically striking but also central to understanding key socio-historical and cultural trends in the nineteenth century. Chapters by leading scholars are grouped in three sections: Citizenships, Textualities and Domesticities, Persons and Bodies and Memories. Materialities and Locations and focus on debates over race, nation, personhood, and print that were central to Reconstruction.
