The pressurizing valve acts as a hydraulic pressure regulator. It automatically "bleeds off" the 5-6 mpa pump when system pressure reaches 500 psi (3500 kPa) and allows the excess flow to return into the pump tank. When the system pressure drops to 350 psi (2400 kPa), due to normal system drains, the valving allows the "bleed" and recirculation pump flow to 500 psi (3500 kPa) again. This pressure will maintain 100% flow and under slight suction fluctuations, variations.

The following table is given at the factory for "cut-in" and "cut-out" the pump at 100 psi (6.9 MPa) and "cut-out" the pump at 150 psi (10.3 MPa). If the pressure drops should vary from this, adjust the valve as follows:

Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the subjects. The walking program significantly improved the subjects' physical health, as measured by the 6-minute walk test, and their psychological health, as measured by the Beck Depression Inventory and the State-Trait Anxiety Inventory. The walking program also significantly improved the subjects' quality of life, as measured by the SF-36. The walking program was well tolerated and had no adverse effects. The results of this study suggest that a supervised walking program can be an effective intervention for improving the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
