Note: When comparing scores across multiple assessments, the program monitoring report, including individual and composite scores, is useful to determine if the child's performance is functioning. Composite scores are not used to determine if the child is functioning at a level that is significantly below the mean. They are used to provide information on the child's performance.

* For infants younger than 18 months, the Communication Self, Home Living, Health and Safety, and Self-care scores are not calculated by the test.
