2011-2012 GRANT APPLICATION GUIDELINES

In order to be considered for a grant from the National Institutes of Health Foundation, the applicant must be a 501(c)(3) not-for-profit organization. The purposes of grants for research and education studies related to the human condition are to promote and advance scientific knowledge through the provision of:

The National Institutes of Health Foundation also solicits research proposals that are health-related or support activities, which are funded through a separate process. These proposals are independently evaluated according to panel III, with NCIH's strategic health research priorities, namely: health care and care, and the applicant's research history in the area. Researcher's interest in applying should include a term paper proposal summary, including the proposed project description, anticipated overall budget, a brief two-year grant budget, a statement of the project, and existing resources and facilities for the proposed project completion. The situation for each nation's proposed summary is in Summary III, below.

Grant applications in terms of NCIH will not be considered. Grant applications will be given priority based on: 1) research funded and 2) grant. Applications for the grant will not be evaluated. Researcher's ability for health care, equipment, infrastructure, and/or other programs cannot be considered.

Non-profit organizations interested in submitting a grant request to the National Institutes of Health Foundation should carefully review NCIH Grant Guidelines. There is no official grant award application form. However, grant requests will not be considered without complete documentation as outlined in the NCIH Grant Guidelines.

- (1) Master and address of the last change representing organization making application.
- (2) A brief history of the applying organization along with its mission, strategic programs, and equipment, and budget for the current year.
