(Appl. Eng. Notes to Fig. 10). The shaft of screw 100 is at the distal leading (101) and (102) spring 103 and member 104. The shaft 105 is in the lower end of the housing 106 (107) shaped like the leading (108) which sits in a slot of the pin (109) supported on the wall (110) of the shaft hole (111). The force system by which the leading wire is shifted on pin 109 "12" causes the control pin (112) to move to the right in the direction of "13". Thus, a flexible connection between the pin (112) and the shaft hole wall (110) exists, while after the control pin reaches the end of its stroke, the shaft of screw 100 is locked from swinging between. When the shaft of screw (10) is released, a return spring (113) forces it back into its original position at "14" position.
