The Pedagogy of Economic, Political and Social Crises Bob Jessop, Karim Knio, 2018-11-09 Crises have been studied in many disciplines and from diverse perspectives for at least 150 years Yet recent decades have seen a marked increase in the crisis literature reflecting growing awareness of crisis phenomena from the 1970s onwards Responding to this mainstream literature this edited collection makes six key innovations First it distinguishes between crises as event and crises as process as well as crises as accidental events or as the result of system generated processes Second it distinguishes crises that can be managed through established crisis management routines from crises of crisis management Third it focuses on the symptomatology of crisis i e the challenge of moving crisis symptoms to understanding underlying causes as a basis for decisive action Fourth it goes beyond the cliché that crises are both threat and opportunity by distinguishing valid accounts of the origins and present nature of a crisis from more speculative accounts of what potentially exists Fifth it explores how crises can disorient conventional wisdom thus provoking efforts to interpret and learn about crises and draw lessons after a crisis has ended Finally the sixth element is the move away from the conventional focus on executive authorities and disaster management agencies instead turning attention towards how other social forces construe crises and attempt to learn from them Offering important insights into the pedagogy of crisis throughout this collection will offer excellent reading to both researchers and postgraduate students

Ontopolitics in the Anthropocene David Chandler, 2018-01-19 The Anthropocene captures more than a debate over how to address the problems of climate change and global warming Increasingly it is seen to signify the end of the modern condition itself and potentially to open up a new era of political possibilities This is the first book to look at the new forms of governance emerging in the epoch of the Anthropocene Forms of rule which seek to govern without the handrails of modernist assumptions of command and control from the top down taking on board new ontopolitical understandings of the need to govern on the grounds of non linearity complexity and entanglement The book is divided into three parts each focusing on a distinct mode or understanding of governance Mapping Sensing and Hacking Mapping looks at attempts to govern through designing adaptive interventions into processes of interaction Sensing considers ways of developing greater real time sensitivity to changes in relations often deploying new technologies of Big Data and the Internet of Things Hacking analyses the development of ways of becoming with working to recomposition and reassemble relations in new and creative forms This work will be of great interest to students and scholars of international politics international security and international relations theory and those interested in critical theory and the way this is impacted by contemporary developments
