

The Beginning of a Green Architecture: Otto Koenigsberger at the Department of Tropical Architecture at the Architectural Association (AA) School of Architecture, London, UK

Vandana Baweja
University of Michigan

In a brief history of green design, Brian Edwards claims that: *"As a general statement, the spiritual approach to 'green design' is found in the underdeveloped world and the low energy, high material approach in the developed."*¹

In 1973, the rational technology unit at the Architectural Association (AA) School of Architecture was constituted in response to the energy crisis precipitated by the Middle Eastern Yom Kippur war. This unit claimed that a significant shift in the western architectural paradigm had taken place which resulted in the end of the "current technocratic, highly wasteful and energy intensive society".² By 1976, the first wave of environmentalism had impacted "western" architectural discourse. In the 1980's and 1990's, the second wave of environmentalism resulted in the paradigmatic redefinition of development to include sustainability, which consequently generated Green Architecture.³ Sustainability is politically subversive,⁴ and in conflict with the interests of global capitalism.

This paper problematizes Edwards' assumption that there exists an impenetrable boundary between the "underdeveloped" and "developed" world in the evolution of Green Architecture. It is argued here that Tropical Architecture was the ideological precursor to Green Architecture. This paper presents the story of the global circulation of Tropical Architecture as the antecedent to Green Architecture, by following the career trajectory of the émigré architect Otto Koenigsberger (1909–99) (Fig.1) and his contribution to the Department of Tropical Architecture (1954–1971) at the AA School of Architecture, London, UK. Green architecture is incongruent with the interests of capitalism, and yet, existing histories of architecture inextricably link Tropical Architecture with 1950's neo-colonial advancement of global capitalism.

As a colonial construct, the term Tropical Architecture was first used in a RIBA paper presentation in 1869.⁵ In the late 19th and early 20th century Tropical Architecture developed as a body-centric discourse, which was circulated through colonial hygiene
