Breeding Ornamental Plants:

Ornamental Crops Johan Van Huylenbroeck, 2018-07-25 Ornamental plants are economically important worldwide Both growers and consumers ask continuously for new improved varieties Although there are numerous ornamental species ornamental plant breeding and plant breeding research is mainly limited to some major species This book focuses on the recent advances and achievements in ornamental plant breeding The first part of the book focuses on plant traits and breeding techniques that are typical for ornamental plants Eminent research groups write these general chapters For plant traits like flower colour or shape breeding for disease resistance and vase or shelf life are reviewed General technical plant breeding chapters deal with mutation breeding polyploidisation in vitro breeding techniques and new developments in molecular techniques The second part of the book consists of crop specific chapters Here all economically major ornamental species are handled together with selected representative species from different plant groups cut flowers pot plants woody ornamental plants In these crop specific chapters the main focus is on recent scientific achievements over the last decade

Al-Khayri, Shri Mohan Jain, Muneeb Ahmad Wani, 2025-02-08 Flowers and other ornamental plants are used for all occasions to meet consumers demands preferably novel flowers traits e g fragrance flower color and shape early flowering less water consumption long shelf life The worldwide floricultural industry is worth over 50 billion Euros and can serve as a food security socio economic impact and generate employment Ornamental industry is regarded as one of the fastest growing farm industries This industry is sustained through novelty thus there is increasing demand on plant breeders in both public and private sectors to fulfil consumer s needs Biotechnological approaches such as genetic transformation genomics nanotechnology and gene editing are well suited for designing custom made novel traits of flowers benefiting both ornamental and cosmetic industry Moreover micropropagation is well exploited commercially for large scale plant production along with vertical and digital farming and artificial intelligence especially by the floriculture industry This book focuses on advances in breeding strategies of diverse range of ornamental plants It consists of 2 parts Part I Flowering annuals and Part II Cut flowers Each chapter contributed by eminent authors is devoted to an individual ornamental species or a group of related species It provides an in depth understanding of modern breeding strategies including traditional methods and biotechnological approaches Topics covered in each chapter in relation to the subject species include current cultivation practices and challenges germplasm biodiversity and conservation traditional breeding molecular breeding tissue culture applications genetic engineering and gene editing mutation breeding hybridization and future research directions Major concepts are illustrated with color photos

Breeding, Genetics and Genomics of Ornamental Plants Johan Van Huylenbroeck, Kenneth W Leonhardt, Teresita D Amore, 2022-05-10 Ornamental crops account for more than US 42 billion globally With the exception of few floral species limited genetic genomic and breeding information is publicly available owing to the fact that the majority of breeding work is performed by the private sector Public research programs are increasingly participating in ornamental cultivar development and genetic studies With lower sequencing costs genomic information of non model species including ornamental crops is continuously becoming available Ornamental breeding utilizes a wide array of breeding strategies ranging from traditional crossing and selection methods to the use of next generation sequencing in genomics and transcriptomics for gene identification and trait development A continuing search of new species for the ornamentals industry has resulted in the utilization of tools that increase diversity and in the development of alternative methods for obtaining new crops by achieving interspecific and intergeneric crosses This Special Issue aimed to present papers on new breeding methods novel cultivars and species entering the ornamental industry the identification of genes conferring novel traits technological developments in ornamentals research and the use of next generation sequencing to improve ornamental plants Advances in genetics and molecular breeding of ornamental plants Shunli Wang,Byoung Ryong Jeong,Pejman Azadi,Daqui Zhao,2023-03-31
