adopted daughter Nala's identity dilemma as she tries to negotiate being the only Black girl in a white high school and community. Natalia Nala Samilton was adopted as a toddler by Dominic and his wife Kate who were unable to have children of their own. The Samiltons have always loved and been honest with Nala. They assumed there would probably be occasional issues bringing a Black child to Edenton but had been confident the community they and their families had lived in for generations would accept Nala as one of their own. Growing up Nala had lots of friends and felt a part of her social group. But as she got older and more aware she began noticing little ways she was treated differently when out in the community and even at school. In middle school a few friends began to exclude her from some social events. She began to question her identity and to avoid any limelight. Having been told by the Samiltons that she had had a twin brother named Langston who died in infancy Nala began to wish he was there to talk to and advise her. She begins imagining conversations with Lang and discussing how she can no longer be a Natalia but isn't sure how to fully embrace being Nala without hurting her parents.

Ayden Quant is a special education student whose impulsivity and tendency to lie belies his instinctual intelligence and insights. He lives with his father whom he first met when he was almost four after his birthmother died of an overdose in West Virginia and his stepmom Anna Quant who hadn't previously known of his existence until he was brought to Wisconsin. Ayden's best friend Allan Sparks is also his nemesis and delights in playing on Ayden's impulsivity to get him in trouble. Lyrical Iowa, 2006

Beyond Suffering John Harries, 2014-11-14 If God is all powerful and all loving why do innocent people suffer? This question is the principle reason why many claim they cannot believe in God. Suffering is intensely personal exposing our vulnerability and making us fearful. It is the prime motivation for prayer and when those prayers go unanswered we feel betrayed. In this book the author John Harries explores our dilemma through the experience of Job whose struggle to find an explanation for his suffering has been specifically recorded to answer our deepest questions. The revelations Job receives from God form the most complete and profound teaching on suffering ever written. John Harries explores the close parallels between Job's story and the life of Jesus further showing that Job anticipates Christ and foresees in him our salvation. He argues that through Job believers encounter Christ in his passion and discover afresh the gospel of redemption. He offers a pastorally relevant explanation for righteous suffering encouraging a deeper awareness of God's presence a growing confidence in sharing our faith and a greater understanding of how to respond biblically to those who question why a loving God should allow suffering.
