Sidhu, Neha Singh Gohil, 2016-05-23 In the days months and now years following the events of September 11th 2001 discrimination against the Sikh community in America has escalated sharply due in part to a populace that often confuses Sikhs compelled by their faith to wear turbans with the Muslim extremists responsible for the devastating terrorist attacks Although Sikhs have since mobilized to spread awareness and condemn violence against themselves and Muslims there has been a conspicuous absence of academic literature to aid scholars and commentators in understanding the effect of the backlash on the Sikh community This volume provides a unique window onto this particular minority group's experience in an increasingly hostile climate and offers a sharp analysis of the legal battles fought by Sikhs in post 9 11 America In doing so it adds a new chapter to the ongoing national story of the difficulties minority groups have faced in protecting their civil liberties in times of war Handbook of Arab American Psychology Mona Amer, Germaine Awad, 2015-11-19 The Handbook of Arab American Psychology is the first major publication to comprehensively discuss the Arab American ethnic group from a lens that is primarily psychological This edited book contains a comprehensive review of the cutting edge research related to Arab Americans and offers a critical analysis regarding the methodologies and applications of the scholarly literature It is a landmark text for both multicultural psychology as well as for Arab American scholarship Considering the post 9 11 socio political context in which Arab Americans are under ongoing scrutiny and attention as well as numerous misunderstandings and biases against this group this text is timely and essential Chapters in the Handbook of Arab American Psychology highlight the most substantial areas of psychological research with this population relevant to diverse sub disciplines including cultural social developmental counseling clinical health and community psychologies Chapters also include content that intersect with related fields such as sociology American studies cultural ethnic studies social work and public health The chapters are written by distinguished scholars who merge their expertise with a review of the empirical data in order to provide the most updated presentation of scholarship about this population The Handbook of Arab American Psychology offers a noteworthy contribution to the field of multicultural psychology and joins references on other racial ethnic minority groups including Handbook of African American Psychology Handbook of Asian American Psychology Handbook of U S Latino Psychology and The Handbook of Chicana o Psychology and Mental Health

Muslims in the West After 9/11 Jocelyne Cesari, 2009-12-04 This book is the first systematic attempt to study the situation of European and American Muslims after 9 11 and to present a comprehensive analysis of their religious political and legal situations Since 9 11 and particularly since the Madrid and London bombings of 2004 and 2005 the Muslim presence in Europe and the United States has become a major political concern Many have raised questions regarding potential links between Western Muslims radical Islam and terrorism Whatever the justification of such concerns it is insufficient to address the subject of Muslims in the West from an exclusively counter terrorist perspective Based on empirical studies of Muslims in the US and Western Europe this edited volume posits the situation of Muslim minorities in a broader reflection on the status of liberalism in Western foreign policies It also explores the changes in immigration policies multiculturalism and secularism that have been shaped by the new international context of the war on terror This book will be of great interest to students of Critical Security Studies Islamic Studies Sociology and Political Science in general Jocelyne Cesari is an Associate at Harvard s Center for Middle Eastern Studies and the Center for European Studies teaching at Harvard Divinity School and the Government Department specializing in Islam and the Middle East

The War of My Generation David Kieran, 2015-08-04 Following the 9 11 attacks approximately four million Americans have turned eighteen each year and more than fifty million children have been born These members of the millennial and post millennial generation have come of age in a moment marked by increased anxiety about terrorism two protracted wars and policies that have raised questions about the United States s role abroad and at home Young people have not been shielded from the attacks or from the wars and policy debates that followed Instead they have been active participants as potential military recruits and organizers for social justice amid anti immigration policies as students in schools learning about the attacks or readers of young adult literature about wars The War of My Generation is the first essay collection to focus specifically on how the terrorist attacks and their aftermath have shaped these new generations of Americans Drawing from a variety of disciplines including anthropology sociology cultural studies and literary studies the essays cover a wide range of topics from graphic war images in the classroom to computer games designed to promote military recruitment to emails from parents in the combat zone The collection considers what cultural factors and products have shaped young people's experience of the 9/11 attacks, the wars that have followed, and their experiences as emerging citizen subjects in that moment. Revealing how young people understand the War on Terror and how adults understand the way young people think, The War of My Generation offers groundbreaking research on catastrophic events still fresh in our minds.

The Colorblind Screen Sarah E. Turner, Sarah Nilsen, 2014

The election of President Barack Obama signaled for many the realization of a post-racial America, a nation in which racism was no longer a defining social, cultural, and political issue. While many Americans espouse a colorblind racial ideology and publicly endorse the broad goals of integration and equal treatment without regard to race, in actuality, this attitude serves to reify and legitimize racism and protects racial privileges by denying and minimizing the effects of systematic and institutionalized racism. In The Colorblind Screen, the contributors examine television's role as the major discursive medium in the articulation and contestation of racialized identities in the United States. While the dominant mode of televisual racialization has shifted to a colorblind ideology that foregrounds racial differences in order to celebrate multicultural assimilation, the volume investigates how this practice denies the significant social, economic, and political realities and inequalities that continue to define race relations today. Focusing on such iconic figures as President Obama, LeBron James, and Oprah Winfrey, many chapters examine the ways in which race is read by television audiences and fans. Other essays focus on how visual constructions of race in dramas like 24, Sleeper Cell, and The Wanted continue to conflate Arab and Muslim identities in post-9/11 television. The volume offers an important intervention in the study of the televisual representation of race, engaging with multiple aspects of the mythologies developing around notions of a post-racial America and the duplicitous discursive rationale offered by the ideology of colorblindness.
