Space, the Final Frontier? Giancarlo Genta, Michael Rycroft, 2003-02-13 What are our motivations for going into space Where does our long term space future lie Why and how should we strive to reach if not for the stars at least for the Moon and Mars This exciting book looks first at the progress that has already been made in our attempts to explore and expand beyond the Earth Current and past space technologies and space stations are described and the effects of the space environment on the human body are explained A discussion of the merits of the robotic exploration of space is followed by a look at our exploration of the Moon and Mars Final chapters touch on propulsion methods required for leaving our solar system and ask which of the possibilities for future space travel is most likely to succeed This thought provoking book will appeal to all those with an interest in the future of space exploration

Satellites Michel Capderou, 2005-12-31 In all the European Space Agency ESA has developed 60 spacecrafts over the last few decades Some of these such as the ERS satellites and Envisat are dedicated to monitoring the Earth and providing vital data on the health status of our planet Other spacecraft have helped to improve the accuracy of weather forecasting Galileo the joint ESA EU satellite navigation programme demonstrates the political dimension of space as service provider for the benefit of European citizens While these missions involve utilitarian space activities others are devoted to either exploring the solar system including the Sun or achieving a better understanding of the Universe and the cosmic beginnings The orbits of these satellites cover a wider range Sun synchronous geostationary highly eccentric at Lagrange points etc so that a complete novice may be astonished when tackling the space technology field The main credit of Michel Capderou's book is to take the reader whether it be a student an engineer or a research scientist progressively from the basic Kepler laws to the most complex equations of space mechanics His educational concern has led him to propose many examples and graphical illustrations from ESA but also from the American Russian Indian Japanese or even Chinese space agencies These programmes provide scientific insights and moreover appear to fascinate the general public in particular the younger generation Those wishing to understand the orbital mechanisms behind these programmes will find the explanations they seek in this book

Observation with CHAMP Christoph Reigber,2005 In the summer of 2000 the German geo research satellite CHAMP was launched into orbit Its innovative payload arrangement and the low initial orbit allow CHAMP to simultaneously collect and almost continuously analyse precise data relating to gravity and magnetic fields at low altitude In addition CHAMP also measures the neutral atmosphere and ionosphere using GPS techniques Three years after launch more than 200 CHAMP investigators and co investigators from all over the world met at the GeoForschungsZentrum in Potsdam to present and discuss the results derived from the extensive data sets of the mission The main outcome of this expert meeting is summarized in this volume The book offers a comprehensive insight into the present status of the exploitation of CHAMP data for Earth system research and practical applications in geodesy geophysics and meteorology NASA Spaceflight

data analysis and interpretation and in sensors Completely new will be material covering advances in oceanography that have grown out of remote sensing including some of the global applications of the data The variety of applications of remotely sensed data to ocean science has grown significantly and new areas of science are emerging to exploit the global datasets being recovered by satellites particularly in relation to climate and climate change basin scale air sea interaction processes e g El Nino and the modelling forecasting and prediction of the ocean Satellite Doug Millard, 2016-11-15 Right now above our heads nearly imperceptible to us but hugely important to how we live are thousands of man made objects that we have sent into space Ubiquitous but mysterious satellites are the technological infrastructure of our globally connected world helping us do everything from orient ourselves on a map to watch our favorite television shows Yet we rarely ever think about them In this book Doug Millard pays overdue tribute to the stoic existence of the satellite tracing its simultaneous pathways through the cold silence of space and the noisy turbulence of the past century How satellites ever came to be is in itself a remarkable story Telling an astonishing history of engineering experimentation and ingenuity Millard shows how the Cold War space race made the earliest satellites ones like Sputnik Telstar and Early Bird household names He describes how they evolved into cultural signifiers that represented not only our scientific capabilities but our capacity for imagination our ability to broaden the scope of our vision to the farthest reaches From there he follows the proliferation of satellites in the second half of the twentieth century examining their many different forms how they evolved all the things they do what they have enabled and how they have influenced our popular culture Ultimately Millard asks what we can still expect what sort of space age the satellite has initiated that is yet to be fully realized Published in association with the Science Museum London this beautifully illustrated book will appeal to any fan of space exploration and technology
