

Analyzing/Critiquing/Evaluating a curriculum

Description of the task

This is an assignment that requires student to critique a given curriculum. Students are required to use a framework to analyse and critique the curriculum. A student needs to identify strengths, weaknesses and concerns (if any) and make a judgement on the quality of the curriculum and recommendations for further improvement.

Procedure and Structure of the task

1. Select of a theoretical framework (s) and/or a set of criteria based on literature review
2. Find education policy/other relevant policies/related national standards
3. Analyze the curriculum using the framework and/or the set of criteria. The following questions may help in this regard:
 - Does the curriculum state societal intentions/ expectations properly? Does the curriculum reflect the national aims of objectives of education?
 - Does the curriculum remain in line with international trend?
 - Does the curriculum provide opportunity to students for learning how to learn, learning how to think (for example, thinking scientifically, thinking mathematically)?
 - Does the curriculum focus on knowledge only or it promotes developing skills, attitude and values?
 - Does the curriculum has connections
 - i. Between daily life experience and subject matters
 - ii. Between prior learning to new learning
 - iii. Among the concepts in a unit
 - iv. Among the units
 - How are contents or subject matters organized in the curriculum?
 - How learning experiences for students are planned in the curriculum?
 - How suitable is the assessment plan for assessing students' learning and informing teaching?
 - How well are intended learning outcomes, contents, teaching learning approaches and assessment plan aligned with each other?

This assignment has a flexible structure. Students are encouraged to be creative in structuring the assignment. However, the following outline can be followed.
