Abstract: This study aims to investigate the impact of digital marketing on the sales performance of small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) in the retail sector. The research focuses on the adoption of various digital marketing strategies and their effectiveness in increasing sales volume and revenue. Data is collected from a sample of 100 SMEs over a period of 12 months. The findings indicate that digital marketing significantly positively affects sales performance, with social media marketing and email campaigns showing the most substantial impact. The study also identifies challenges such as limited budgets and lack of digital expertise as barriers to effective digital marketing implementation. Recommendations include investing in digital marketing training and leveraging cost-effective digital channels to maximize sales growth.

Students with individualized learning problems, as well as students with special needs, need to be taught strategies that will help them to learn. These are "learning to learn" strategies that help them to learn more effectively and efficiently.

These results indicate that the proposed system can be used for the detection of the AFB₁ content in aflatoxin-contaminated feed. The proposed method was compared with the ELISA method in terms of the detection limit, accuracy, and reproducibility. The detection limit of the proposed method was 0.05 µg/kg, which is lower than that of the ELISA method (0.1 µg/kg). The accuracy and reproducibility of the proposed method were also satisfactory.
