reductions, independent assessments, and safety in populations of organisms that

1. Mendelian crosses

Monohybrid cross: A cross between two individuals that are heterozygous for a single trait.

Dihybrid cross: A cross between two individuals that are heterozygous for two traits.

Genotype: The genetic makeup of an organism.

Phenotype: The observable characteristics of an organism.

2. Probability

Probability: The chance of a particular outcome occurring.

Independent assortment: The random distribution of chromosomes to gametes during meiosis.

Linkage: The tendency of genes that are close together on a chromosome to be inherited together.

3. S.S.B. Predict possible outcomes of various dihybrid crosses, including non-Mendelian (sex-linked) traits.

Sex-linked traits: Traits controlled by genes located on the sex chromosomes.

Carrier: An individual who has one copy of a recessive allele for a trait but does not express the trait.

4. Probability

Probability: The chance of a particular outcome occurring.

Independent assortment: The random distribution of chromosomes to gametes during meiosis.

Linkage: The tendency of genes that are close together on a chromosome to be inherited together.

10.1 Mendel's Laws of Inheritance

10.1.1 Mendel's Experiments

Mendel's experiments on pea plants led to the discovery of the laws of inheritance. He studied seven traits, including seed shape, seed color, flower color, and pod shape. His results showed that traits are inherited in predictable patterns, leading to the formulation of his laws of inheritance.

10.1.2 Mendel's Laws of Inheritance

Law of Segregation: During gamete formation, the two alleles for a trait separate (segregate) so that each gamete carries only one allele. This is represented by a Punnett square showing the segregation of alleles from two heterozygous parents (Aa x Aa).

Law of Independent Assortment: The alleles for different traits are inherited independently of each other. This is represented by a Punnett square showing the independent assortment of two traits (AaBb x AaBb).

10.2 Non-Mendelian Inheritance

10.2.1 Incomplete Dominance

In incomplete dominance, the heterozygous genotype results in a phenotype that is intermediate between the two homozygous phenotypes. For example, a cross between a red-flowered plant (RR) and a white-flowered plant (rr) results in pink-flowered offspring (Rr).

10.2.2 Codominance

In codominance, both alleles are expressed equally in the heterozygous state. For example, a cross between a red-flowered plant (RR) and a white-flowered plant (rr) results in offspring with both red and white flowers (Rr).

10.2.3 Multiple Alleles

Some traits are controlled by more than two alleles. For example, the ABO blood group system is controlled by three alleles: A, B, and O. The possible genotypes and phenotypes are shown in the table below.

Genotype	Phenotype
AA	A
AO	A
BB	B
BO	B
AB	AB
OO	O
