Abstract The purpose of this study was to examine the effects of a 12-week, 3-day-per-week, 100-min-per-session, low-impact aerobically and resistance training program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life (HRQL) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were randomly assigned to either the exercise or control group. The exercise group performed a low-impact aerobically and resistance training program, while the control group performed no exercise. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks. The results showed that the exercise group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness and HRQL than the control group at 12 weeks. The findings suggest that a low-impact aerobically and resistance training program can improve physical fitness and HRQL in sedentary, middle-aged women.
