on designing developing and using assessments with flexible step by step processes for improving the quality of tests and assessment systems to make them fairer and more accurate This book is an indispensable introduction to the areas of language assessment and testing and will be of interest to language teachers as well as postgraduate and advanced undergraduate students studying Language Education Applied Linguistics and Language Assessment The Use and Abuse of EFL Dictionaries Hilary Nesi, 2012-02-14 The book begins with a review of research into dictionary use A number of experimental design problems are discussed in particular the unreliability of questionnaire responses and the need for detailed accounts of individual dictionary consultations whilst sampling in numbers sufficient to represent specified populations The experiments reported in subsequent chapters investigate issues raised in the review The first two studies find that dictionary use during a reading comprehension test affected completion speed but not test scores The apparent failure of dictionary use to improve comprehension is attributed to the test itself the dictionaries and the users choice of look up words The ability of users to interpret dictionary entries is investigated in three further studies which use computers to gather data on large numbers of individual consultations The findings indicate that there is little difference between three major EFL dictionaries in terms of speed of consultation and overall productive success They also indicate that Malaysian ESL subjects who have higher vocabulary scores are slower in their reading and less successful in their interpretation of entries than Portuguese EFL subjects Finally the findings suggest that overall productive success is unaffected by the presence or absence of examples The experimental findings lead to the conclusion that dictionary consultation is a process in which users match pre existing beliefs about word meaning and behaviour against segments in the dictionary entry Such segments are often selected because they are familiar sounding and conceptually accessible but may contain only incomplete or non essential information Where pre existing beliefs and dictionary information conflict dictionary information is sometimes overridden Thus word knowledge acquired from a single consultation is often insufficient to ensure productive success Although it is probably inevitable that word knowledge will be acquired slowly through multiple encounters modifications to the dictionary entry and the training of users might help to avoid serious misinterpretation of dictionary information Revisiting the Assessment of Second Language Abilities: From Theory to Practice Sahbi Hidri, 2018-01-12 This book presents an overview of revisiting the assessment of language abilities It also showcases how the measurement of such constructs can result in negative or positive washback and how outcomes might be conducive to repercussions that decide on the future of many stakeholders The 23 chapters were selected among tens of chapters received from different contexts that addressed the issue of revisiting the assessment of language abilities such as Tunisia Ukraine Algeria Russia KSA Sudan Egypt Canada Kurdistan UK USA Iran Turkey etc These contexts have highlighted the necessity to revisit the different constructs which should be assessed with a clear and straightforward foundation on students learning objectives and their actual language ability To do so most of the chapters present hands on use of relevant statistical tests that might serve in revisiting the construct definition both theoretically and operationally Perhaps the sole and intricate question that the authors of these contributions ask is what it means to revisit the assessment of the construct of individualized language ability and how In addition the book accentuates the momentousness and significance of reflecting on test fairness and validation as the mainspring and backbone for democratization of assessment This book appeals to a broad readership such as English Language Teaching ELT practitioners language teachers students testing organizations policy makers test designers writers of test specifications testing experts researchers program evaluators especially in the Middle East and North Africa MENA as well as other international contexts
