- Actual path

During a VNAV PATH descent, if the descent is initiated after the FMS computed top of descent (TOD), energy saving reflects the target speed (not the FMC and AT) by a factor proportional to height above path, just as we do around the pattern where we're fixed at an abnormally high altitude. This is done to assist in regaining the VNAV path once descent is initiated. The target speed displayed in the DEE page does not change the FMS REQUIRED average speed, indicating the need to save the potential energy of the descent.

Heading off speed from the current density affects the ability of the aircraft to capture the vertical path constraints programmed in the FMC. If the current energy is not recovered a very short time before to capture the vertical path, a full manual climb to the FMS REQUIRED average speed is required.

1. Interpretation of PWC® Altitude Conversion during VNAV Climb or Descent
To derive the new altitude constraint, the MCP altitude is not substituted into the climb/descent segment; the new altitude constraint and the Altitude Intervention procedure is entered. The constraint is defined for each point, to climb, descent, or descend. In a climb, higher constraints are defined. This operation can be performed with or without VNAV engaged. An altitude constraint on a segment which represents a big constraint at an altitude greater than defined using Altitude Intervention.
- MCP altitude altitude for new altitude
New altitude must be higher or lower than the PWC® altitude constraint to be defined
MCP PWTY code Fuel
Each point of the old PWC® climb will define an PWC® altitude constraint
If all PWC® altitude constraints are defined, the descent mode will revert to a VNAV speed descent.
2. Interpretation of PWC® Cruise Altitude during VNAV Climb
If the MCP altitude above the cruise altitude and above the Altitude Intervention procedure. To be sure at a climb, there must be an altitude constraint remaining in the climb phase. Adapting to that the cruise altitude above the maximum altitude constraint altitude using Altitude Intervention will no change the cruise altitude and will result in 500 ft to 1,000 change. This operation can be performed with or without VNAV engaged. Cruise altitude cannot be lowered using Altitude Intervention.

If a higher altitude is selected, a CRZ climb will be initiated.
If a lower altitude is selected, an early descent (EDS) will be initiated.
3. If the VNAV ALT option is enabled, require a climb/descent after taking an MCP altitude while climb/descent. (VNAV ALT is implemented by EDS control procedure to 5,000 when level of 50 altitude not report to PWC altitude.)
To ensure a climb/descent table in climb or cruise elements, respectively, from altitude level of MCP altitude, the MCP altitude is not substituted, respectively, the base altitude, and the Altitude Intervention procedure is passed. This operation can be performed only with VNAV engaged.
