Attack Helicopter Operations Fm 1 11:

Attack Helicopter Operations In Urban Terrain Major Timothy A. Jones, 2014-08-15 Today's Army faces an environment much different from that which it prepared for in the Cold War. Massed armor battles on the plains of Europe for which the Army was trained and equipped have become much less likely while involvement in smaller and more limited conflict has become more probable. Future conflict is more likely to resemble Grenada, Panama, or Somalia than Desert Storm. As world demographics shift from rural to urban areas, the cities will increasingly become areas of potential conflict. They cannot be avoided as a likely battlefield and have already played a prominent part in Army combat operations in the last decade. If the Army is to keep pace in this changing environment, it must look to the cities when developing doctrine, technology, and force structure. The close battlefield of Mogadishu or Panama City is much different from the premier training areas of the National Training Center or Hohenfels. Yet aviators have been presented the dilemma of training for the latter environment and being deployed to the former. For most aviators facing urban combat, it is a matter of learning as they fight. To avoid the high casualties and collateral damage likely in an urban fight against a determined opponent, however, Army aviation must train and prepare before they fight. Attack helicopters are inextricably woven into the fabric of combined arms operations. But for the Army to operate effectively as a combined arms team in an urban environment, both aviators and the ground units they support must understand the capabilities and limitations attack helicopters bring to the battle. This paper presents an historical perspective of how attack helicopters have already been used in this environment. It also discusses the factors that make city fighting unique and the advantages and disadvantages for attack helicopter employment in an urban environment, as well as implications for future urban conflicts. Armor, 1974 Learning Large Lessons David E. Johnson, 2007-03-30 The relative roles of U.S. ground and air power have shifted since the end of the Cold War. At the level of major operations and campaigns, the Air Force has proved capable of and committed to performing deep strike operations which the Army long had believed the Air Force could not reliably accomplish. If air power can largely supplant Army systems in deep operations, the implications for both joint doctrine and service capabilities would be significant. To assess the shift of these roles, the author of this report analyzed post-Cold War conflicts in Iraq 1991, Bosnia 1995, Kosovo 1999, Afghanistan 2001, and Iraq 2003. Because joint doctrine frequently reflects a consensus view rather than a truly integrated joint perspective, the author recommends that joint doctrine and the processes by which it is derived and promulgated be overhauled. The author also recommends reform for the services beyond major operations and campaigns to ensure that the United States attains its strategic objectives. This revised edition includes updates and an index. Operations United States. Dept. of the Army, 1982 FM 100-5 explains how the Army must conduct campaigns and battles in order to win It describes US Army operational doctrine involving maneuver firepower and movement combined arms warfare and cooperative actions with sister services and allies It emphasizes tactical flexibility and speed as well as mission orders initiative among subordinates and the spirit of the offense Specific operational details appear in other field manuals and regulations Page i Index of Doctrinal, Training, and Organizational Publications United States.
