An Imperfect Offering Dispatches From The Medical Frontline:

An Imperfect Offering James Orbinski, 2009-11-10 Born in Britain in 1960 James Orbinski's family moved to Canada when he was seven years old As a young man he became a medic to learn how to help and deal with the suffering of others From then on he was plunged into many highly demanding situations including being Head of Mission for Medecins Sans Frontieres MSF during the Rwandan genocide engaging with the politics of humanitarian work as the President of MSF being in New York when the twin towers of the World Trade Center fell on September 11 co founding Dignitas International an AIDS charity and finally returning to Rwanda on the 10th anniversary of the crisis there In An Imperfect Offering Orbinski not only tells his own inspiring story but is also remarkably provocative about what governments and agencies should and shouldn't be doing to help the world's poor and very sick At the same time he addresses what part each of us can play so that we never lose sight of the dignity of those being helped or deny them the right to act in their own lives His conclusion is blunt and profound Humanity is lost or saved one person at a time one intention at a time and one action at a time There are no utopias waiting to be born There is only what we do what you choose to do A People Betrayed Linda Melvern, 2019-03-15 Events in Rwanda in 1994 mark a landmark in the history of modern genocide Up to one million people were killed in a planned public and political campaign In the face of indisputable evidence the UN Security Council failed miserably in its response In this classic of investigative journalism Linda Melvern tells the compelling story of what really happened revealing both the scale speed and intensity of the unfolding genocide as well as exposing the governments and individuals who could have prevented what was happening if they had chosen to act The book also tells the unrecognised heroism of those who stayed on during the genocide from volunteer peacekeepers to courageous NGO workers Twenty five years on from one of the darkest episodes in modern history A People Betrayed is a shocking indictment of how Rwanda was ignored then and how today it is remembered in the West The Endtimes of Human Rights Stephen Hopgood, 2013-10-04 We are living through the endtimes of the civilizing mission The ineffectual International Criminal Court and its disastrous first prosecutor Luis Moreno Ocampo along with the failure in Syria of the Responsibility to Protect are the latest pieces of evidence not of transient misfortunes but of fatal structural defects in international humanism Whether it is the increase in deadly attacks on aid workers the torture and disappearing of al Qaeda suspects by American officials the flouting of international law by states such as Sri Lanka and Sudan or the shambles of the Khmer Rouge tribunal in Phnom Penh the prospect of one world under secular human rights law is receding What seemed like a dawn is in fact a sunset The foundations of universal liberal norms and global governance are crumbling from The Endtimes of Human Rights In a book that is at once passionate and provocative Stephen Hopgood argues against the conventional wisdom that the idea of universal human rights has become not only ill adapted to current realities but also overambitious and unresponsive A shift in the global balance of power away from the United States further undermines the foundations on which the global human rights regime is based American decline exposes the contradictions hypocrisies and weaknesses behind the attempt to enforce this regime around the world and opens the way for resurgent religious and sovereign actors to challenge human rights Historically Hopgood writes universal humanist norms inspired a sense of secular religiosity among the new middle classes of a rapidly modernizing Europe Human rights were the product of a particular worldview Western European and Christian and specific historical moments humanitarianism in the nineteenth century the aftermath of the Holocaust They were an antidote to a troubling contradiction the coexistence of a belief in progress with horrifying violence and growing inequality The obsolescence of that founding purpose in the modern globalized world has Hopgood asserts transformed the institutions created to perform it such as the International Committee of the Red Cross and recently the International Criminal Court into self perpetuating structures of intermittent power and authority that mask their lack of democratic legitimacy and systematic ineffectiveness At their best they provide relief in extraordinary situations of great distress otherwise they are serving up a mixture of false hope and unaccountability sustained by human rights as a global brand The Endtimes of Human Rights is sure to be controversial Hopgood makes a plea for a new understanding of where hope lies for human rights a plea that mourns the promise but rejects the reality of universalism in favor of a less predictable encounter with the diverse realities of today s multipolar world

Medical Education for the Future Alan Bleakley, John Bligh, Julie Browne, 2011-02-21 The purpose of medical education is to benefit patients by improving the work of doctors Patient centeredness is a centuries old concept in medicine but there is still a long way to go before medical education can truly be said to be patient centered Ensuring the centrality of the patient is a particular challenge during medical education when students are still forming an identity as trainee doctors and conservative attitudes towards medicine and education are common amongst medical teachers making it hard to bring about improvements How can teachers policy makers researchers and doctors bring about lasting change that will restore the patient to the heart of medical education The authors experienced medical educators explore the role of the patient in medical education in terms of identity power and location Using innovative political philosophical cultural and literary critical frameworks that have previously never been applied so consistently to the field the authors provide a fundamental reconceptualisation of medical teaching and learning with an emphasis upon learning at the bedside and in the clinic They offer a wealth of practical and conceptual insights into the three way relationship between patients students and teachers setting out a radical and exciting approach to a medical education for the future The authors provide us with a masterful reconceptualization of medical education that challenges traditional notions about teaching and learning The book critiques current practices and offers new approaches to medical education based upon sociocultural research and theory This thought provoking narrative advances the case for reform and is a must read for anyone involved in medical education David M Irby PhD Vice Dean for Education University of California San Francisco School of Medicine and co author of Educating Physicians A Call for Reform of Medical School and Residency This book is a truly visionary contribution to the Flexner centenary It is compulsory reading for the medical educationalist with a serious concern for the future and for the welfare of patients and learners in the here and now Professor Tim Dornan
