2000 with the increase and diffusion of modern technologies a new form of bullying using electronic means has emerged Literature has reached some consistent findings on the description of the problem However there is still a lack of knowledge about developmental processes of cyberbullying and about possible predictors and correlates Some of the main emerging areas investigated in connection with cyberbullying are personality factors callous unemotional traits and self control memory cognitive distortions emotional and moral mechanisms ICT use and media exposure family and social contexts

Another important issue is the relation between cyberbullying and face to face bullying. From face to face literature we know some of the mechanisms in the peer group such as the relation between bullying dominance and popularity and the role of bystanders in the social dynamic of the attacks. However, nothing is known about the cyber community. Contributors to this volume attempt to investigate these group mechanisms in the cyber community. Finally, for the victims, long term consequences are also relevant both in terms of perceived stress level and of the association between cyber victimization and mental health. This special issue offers important new findings on the development and consequences of cyberbullying and cyber victimization and opens new and future directions of research.
