ABSTRACT

The role of agricultural mechanization in production and post-production agriculture including that of livestock farming and aquaculture cannot be overlooked because, it facilitates timely completion of various unit operations, better utilization of inputs which provides better yield and higher production with no or minimum drudgery to the farm workers. Traditional agricultural tools and machines are now being replaced with improved energy-efficient equipment which utilizes renewable and non-renewable energy sources in their operation. The likely future trend in agricultural mechanization by 2030 AD and beyond are use of Artificial Intelligence (AI) based remotely controlled unmanned vehicle/machine for tillage, sowing, irrigation, intercultural, chemical spray for plant protection, harvesting, and so on. As of now, the trend is for higher capacity and precision machinery, to be used on a custom hire basis or contract services. This trend has already been started and the GoI has already introduced a submission on agricultural mechanization. The level of processing from manual threshing and manual winnowing of food grain to multi-crop thresher to modern storage godown has been developed. The automated cleaning, grading, pulse milling, modernization of rice milling, cold storage, refrigerated storage, and advanced packaging systems has been in place today. Agro-processing centers in the production catchment need to be established and operated at panchayat and divisional (Tehsil) levels by following the principle of the circular economy. Also, for improving the field irrigation efficiency, the development in the irrigation tools/gadgets to shift from open channel to drip and sprinkler systems is highly desirable for saving water. Therefore, the use of renewable energy resources (especially solar and wind energy) for all such improvement could be an alternative to the exhaustive energy sources for sustainable growth and development of the agriculture sector.

Jellis, 2013-03-14 There is an increasing need for an understanding of the fundamental processes involved in the mechanisms by which disease resistances are introduced into crop plants This book provides a wide ranging coverage of the successes and failures of the classical techniques it describes the advances towards modern technology and addresses the problems of pathogen variation Crop plants that are considered include cereals wheat barley rice potatoes vegetables and soft fruits The Political Ecology of Malaria Matian van Soest, 2020-09-03 Malaria remains one of the main causes of mortality and morbidity in sub Saharan Africa Matian van Soest looks at the malaria epidemic in the peri urban zones of Uganda s capital Kampala against the backdrop of recent socio ecological transformations Based on long term ethnographic research the book provides a holistic picture of the malaria epidemic in central Uganda revealing the highly localized character of an epidemic that once spanned across almost the entire globe Understanding and ultimately tackling the disease requires an appreciation of the social political as well as ecological circumstances that frame this epidemic Specificity in Plant Diseases R. Wood, 2012-12-06 A NATO Advanced Study Institute on Phytotoxins in Plant Diseases was held in Pugnochiuso Italy in June 1970 It was concerned mainly with the chemistry and mode of action of substances toxic to higher plants which are produced by pathogenic bacteria and fungi The role of such substances in specificity was considered but largely in relation to host specific toxins In 1973 in light of the success of the 1970 Institute we decided to plan for another in 1975 and after discussion with colleagues during the Second International Congress of Plant Pathology we selected Specificity in Plant Diseases as the theme for the 1975 Institute Our chief reasons for the choice were that specificity is undoubtedly the dominant problem in plant pathology and that with the rapid increase during the last decade or so in the diversity and sophistication of biochemical techniques we should now expect during the next few years much more research on specificity and major advances in our understanding of the mechanisms that control it It seemed to us that a residential meeting with the advantages and status of a NATO Advanced Study Institute would do much to stimulate interest and research in this most important field The theme also had the merit of continuity with that of the 1970 Institute
