In 1998, the first time in three years, Republicans gained control of both houses of Congress. A. Richard B. Wright, Jr., a Republican congressman from Mississippi, wrote a letter to the President-elect, Bill Clinton, congratulating him for the Republican victory. Wright wrote that "the one of the most important events" was that the new Congress would be "a more balanced and more effective one."

Key Takeaway: The 100-year industrial revolution of capitalism has facilitated some unprecedented benefits and turned much of the world into a global village. But, increasing global wealth hasn't been evenly distributed in the world. Global inequality is still a fact of life, and another century may have to pass before global equity and justice supplant the current global status quo.
