New Zealand and the Sea Frances Steel, Atholl Anderson, Tony Ballantyne, Julie Benjamin, Douglas Booth, Chris Brickell, Peter Gilderdale, David Haines, Susan Liebich, Alison MacDiarmid, Ben Maddison, Angela McCarthy, Grace Millar, Damon Salesa, Jonathan Scott, Michael J. Stevens, Jonathan West, 2018 As a group of islands in the far south west Pacific Ocean New Zealand has a history that is steeped in the sea Its people have encountered the sea in many different ways along the coast in port on ships beneath the waves behind a camera and in the realm of the imagination While New Zealanders have continually altered their marine environments the ocean too has influenced their lives A multi disciplinary work encompassing history marine science archaeology and visual culture New Zealand and the Sea explores New Zealand's varied relationship with the sea challenging the conventional view that history unfolds on land Leading and emerging scholars highlight the dynamic ocean centred history of these islands and their inhabitants offering fascinating new perspectives on New Zealand's pasts The ocean has profoundly shaped culture across this narrow archipelago The meeting of land and sea is central in historical accounts of Polynesian discovery and colonisation European exploratory voyaging sealing whaling and the littoral communities that supported these plural occupations and the mass migrant passage from Britain Frances Steel

A Power in the World Lorenz Gonschor, 2019-06-30 Few people today know that in the nineteenth century Hawai'i was not only an internationally recognized independent nation but played a crucial role in the entire Pacific region and left an important legacy throughout Oceania As the first non Western state to gain full recognition as a coequal of the Western powers yet at the same time grounded in indigenous tradition and identity the Hawaiian Kingdom occupied a unique position in the late nineteenth century world order From this position Hawai'i's leaders were able to promote the building of independent states based on their country's model throughout the Pacific envisioning the region to become politically unified Such a pan Oceanian polity would be able to withstand foreign colonialism and become in the words of one of the idea's pioneers a Power in the World After being developed over three decades among both native and non native intellectuals close to the Hawaiian court King Kalikau's government started implementing this vision in 1887 by concluding a treaty of confederation with Samoa a first step toward a larger Hawaiian led pan Oceanian federation Political unrest and Western imperialist interference in both Hawai'i and Samoa prevented the project from advancing further at the time and a long interlude of colonialism and occupation has obscured its legacy for over a century Nonetheless it remains an inspiring historical precedent for movements toward greater political and economic integration in the Pacific Islands region today Lorenz Gonschor examines two intertwined historical processes The development of a Hawai i based pan Oceanian policy and underlying ideology which in turn provided the rationale for the second process the spread of the Hawaiian Kingdom s constitutional model to other Pacific archipelagos He argues that the legacy of this visionary policy is today re emerging in the form of two interconnected movements namely a growing movement in Hawai i to reclaim its legacy as Oceania s historically leading nation state on one hand and an increasingly assertive Oceanian regionalism emanating mainly from Fiji and other postcolonial states in the Southwestern Pacific on the other As a historical reference for both nineteenth century Hawaiian policy serves as an inspiration and guideline for envisioning de colonial futures for the Pacific region
