Telecommunications Strategy Peter Curwen,Jason Whalley,2004-08-12 The telecommunications industry is one of the most influential and significant global industries As well as being fundamentally important to the health of the modern economy it is going through a period of unprecedented change facing a range of strategic challenges from globalization and cross border alliances to changing technologies and consu Competition and Chaos Robert W. Crandall,2005-04-26 The 1996 Telecommunications Act was an attempt to increase competition among telecommunications providers in the United States by reducing regulatory barriers to market entry This competition was expected to drive innovation in the telecommunications sector and reap economic benefits for both American consumers and telecommunications providers The legislation however had a markedly different impact While many of the more aggressive providers enjoyed sharp short term rises in stock market values they soon faced sudden collapse leaving consumers with little or no long term benefit In Competition and Chaos Robert W Crandall analyzes the impact of the 1996 act on economic welfare in the United States and how the act and its antecedents affected the major telecommunications providers He argues that the act was far too stringent inviting the Federal Communications Commission and state regulators to micromanage competitive entry into local telecommunications markets Combined with the bursting of the dot com and telecom stock market bubbles this aggressive policy invited new and existing firms to invest billions of dollars unwisely leading to the 2001 02 collapse of equity values throughout the sector New entrants into the market invested more than 50 billion in unproductive assets that were quickly wiped out through massive failures The 1996 act allowed the independent long distance companies such as MCI and AT T to live a few years longer But today they are a threatened species caught in a downward spiral of declining prices and substantial losses The industry is preparing for an intense battle for market share among three sets of carriers the wireless companies the local telephone carriers and the cable television businesses Each has its own particular advantage in one of the three major segments of the market voice data and video but none is assured a clear path to dominance Although the telecom stock market collapse i High Speed Access Report , Network World ,1993-08-02 For more than 20 years Network World has been the premier provider of information intelligence and insight for network and IT executives responsible for the digital nervous systems of large organizations Readers are responsible for designing implementing and managing the voice data and video systems their companies use to support everything from business critical applications to employee collaboration and electronic commerce Network World ,1990-07-23 For more than 20 years Network World has
