Building Better Public Services Tony Dean, 2015-08-12 For decades public service organizations have been under constant and growing pressure from citizens and stakeholders to provide more integrated effective and accountable programs and services Governments are beginning to acknowledge that they can't own every issue and increasingly look to collaboration networking and consultation at many levels as they design and develop policies programs and service delivery mechanisms Building Better Public Services explores the challenges facing public services in the 21st century including the need for systemic cultural change enhanced governance evidence informed policy and program design and shared approaches to service delivery Based on case studies and interviews supplemented by first person experience Building Better Public Services will take you inside the world of public services in Canada and the United Kingdom to explore capacity building successes and lessons learned The book offers insights into innovations that will inform public servants as they work to improve services for citizens and gives directional advice and observations on the importance of public services leadership an area rarely explored in business leadership literature An essential handbook on how to improve public policy and services This is not yet another book focused primarily on making government smaller or driven by an ideology of austerity It is rather grounded in a deep appreciation of the importance of public service to our quality of life and well being and of the great advantages Canada's professional nonpartisan public service affords Drawing on examples across Canada and internationally of what works and what does not Tony offers concrete recommendations for building a more citizen centred open collaborative public service Alex Himelfarb Former Clerk of the Privy Council Government of Canada and current Chair of WWF Canada and the Canadian Alliance to End Homelessness I hope Tony Dean's reflections bring a long overdue debate to a critical subject how to make public services work better Innovation in the public sector is a subject that cries out for real discussion and Tony has done us all a great favour by analysing these issues with commitment and flair It's not about cutting things it's about creativity and getting things done breaking down silos and making it happen Bob Rae Lawyer negotiator and Ontario's 21st Premier This is a book written by someone who knows the day to day challenges and reality of making governments work It should be read by both current and future politicians and public servants who want to improve their governments focus on outcomes for and with citizens Dean underpins this book with relentlessly wanting to achieve more He celebrates the passion commitment and innovation of public servants but is not blind to the need for change Ray Shostak International Government Adviser and former head of the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit and Director General Performance HM Government UK

Sustainable Macroeconomics, Climate Risks and Energy Transitions Unurjargal Nyambuu, Willi Semmler, 2023-05-30

Given the industrialized world's historical dependence on fossil fuel based energy resources and the now realized perils of moving beyond the earth's carbon budget this book explores the myriad challenges of climate change and in reaching a low carbon economy. Reconciling the medium term competing yet frequently complementary needs for transition policies the book provides guidelines for complex and often conflicting climate policy tasks. The book presents empirical trends in the use of carbon emitting resources and evaluates market driven short termism and its adverse impact on resource use and the environment. It emphasizes a medium term macroeconomic perspective for the transition. The authors attempt a paradigm shift towards a framework of sustainable macroeconomics. They survey relevant historical models, conduct empirical and numerical analyses of the climate change relevant dynamic models, provide empirical illustrations and evaluate diverse policy options and implementations together with their historical evolution. New analytical issues are also considered, e.g. strategic behavior in the energy and resource sectors, energy competition and the dynamics of market shares in new energy technology and supporting policies for dealing with the tipping points encountered in climate change. The authors suggest a multitude of market based strategies and public fiscal, monetary and financial policies and longer run planning for resource extraction all suitable for driving sustainable growth and a transformation of the energy sector. The book also examines the multiple delaying forces slowing the transition to a low carbon economy; these typically arise from short termism, lock ins, irreversibility, leakages, non cooperative games and other political strategies. Thus they explain the snail's pace evolution of current national and global climate policies. The book will appeal to scholars and students of economics and environmental science. It is also relevant for policymakers and practitioners in multilateral institutions, research institutions as well as governments and ministries of countries interested in alternative energy sources, climate economists and those who study the implementation of sustainable and low carbon based policies.
