Wu, S., Singh-Carlson, S., Odell, A., Reynolds, G., & Su, Y. (2016, July). Compassion Fatigue, burnout, and compassion satisfaction among oncology nurses in the United States and Canada. In Oncol Nurs Forum (Vol. 43, No. 4, pp. E161-E169).

Introduction

The research article by Wu et al. (2016) purposed to investigate the different experiences of oncology nurses including burnout, compassion exhaustion, and compassion satisfaction. It also compared these experiences between cancer nurses in Canada and America (Wu et al., 2016). Studies have shown that cancer caregivers experience two major work-related adversities that are burnout and compassion fatigue. Because of the nurses' continuous interaction with the cancer patients and families, they are likely to develop emotional sorrow, and burden; especially if they experience traumatic incidences like death. The continual exposure to human sadness as well as the need for care provided in these conditions has led to the development of work-related exhaustion and compassion tiredness among cancer caregivers. This further framed the basis of this research and its objective of examining the varied experiences of the cancer nurses in America and Canada with regards to burnout, compassion exhaustion and satisfaction. Therefore, the supportive working environment and conditions are important in enhancing compassion satisfaction thus reducing cases of burnout and compassion fatigue.

Research Questions

The study aimed at answering two questions including: what health, personal, work and demographic factors influenced the risk of burnout and compassion fatigue among the American oncology nurses compared to those from Canada?
